Woman Killed, Several Hurt

When Big Paige Touring Car Upset at Perrine's Bridge Thursday—Jacob Zindkind of Brooklyn, Chauffeur, Charged With Manslaughter—Out on Bail.

Mrs. Martin Swerczewski of No. 319 East 5th street, New York, died at the Kingston city hospital late Thursday afternoon of a fractured skull received when the big Paige touring car she was riding in shot off the road at Perrine's Bridge and upset. Several others in the car were injured and hurried to the hospital. Jacob Zindkind of No. 238 Ellery street, Brooklyn, driver of the car, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter, and was released when he furnished $2,000 bail. Those injured in the accident expect to leave the hospital shortly.

At The Hospital.

Those now at the hospital are:

Abe Weinstock, 180 West 64th street, a hip injury.

Ignatz Rasswitch, Brooklyn, lacerations to face.

Mrs. Sarah Gloverman, 303 East 120th street, New York, fractured rib and shoulder.

They are expected to leave the hospital within the next day or so.

Others In Party.

Martin Swerczewski, the husband of the dead woman, was only slightly injured and was able to leave the hospital Friday.

The others in the car were: Steve Cartey, Houston street, New York; Stanley Podhagedki, New York; Harry Seigel, New York; Harvey Hesler, New York. They were slightly injured.

Zindkind Arrested.

Jacob Zindkind, whose car has been engaged to convey the party to the mountains for the holiday, was placed under arrest on a charge of manslaughter. Friday evening he was arraigned before Judge Henry E. McKenzie at Port Ewen, and through his attorney, Frank W. Brooks, entered a plea of not guilty. The hearing was adjourned to June 6. Bail was fixed at $2,000 which was furnished.

Zindkind claims he was not to blame for the accident, but it was due to the slippery condition of the road. Mr. Swerczewski, husband of the dead woman, claims that Zindkind was driving at a fast rate of speed and during the trip up from New York had been warned by members of the party to slow down.

At Perrine's Bridge the big car shot off the road and into a wayside fence. In leaving the road it turned over, and was practically a complete wreck. It was later towed to the West Shore Garage.

The ambulance of Edgar L. Mower of this city was called to the scene of the accident and removed Mrs. Swerczewski to the hospital where she was attended by Dr. Stern and Dr. Norwood. Her body was taken to her home in New York Friday night by Coroner W. Norman Conner.

Negresses Use Knife and Razor

Owens Spain, a negro, was taken to the Kingston City Hospital to have his wounds dressed, and Mary Cherry and Sarah Dickson, negresses, were taken to police headquarters this morning to await a hearing in police court before Judge Robert G. Groves as the result of a hurry call to police headquarters from No. 126 Broadway.

From the story told by the negresses, Owens, who had boarded at the house, forced his way in this morning and they claim that to protect themselves they used a razor and a knife on him. Mary used an old razor blade while Sarah preferred a penknife.

Owens was carved about the face and in the back. At the hospital it was found his wounds were not serious.

Later the two negresses were arraigned before Judge Groves and the hearing adjourned to Monday morning. Both are charged with assault in the third degree.

Minstrel Show At St. Peter's

St. Peter's amateur talent will present a Farmyard Minstrel on Monday and Tuesday evenings, June 2nd and 3rd, at eight o'clock. The well known ability, displayed on many previous occasions, is expected to draw a large audience to enjoy this popular form of entertainment.

This minstrel given under the auspices of St. Peter's Lyceum, will offer novel features of song, dance and humor, and will introduce many local stars, whose talent will vie with those whose success in the past has made St. Peter's minstrels famous.

Balfe's orchestra will supply the music. After the performance dancing will be enjoyed each evening. Refreshments will be served by the Christian Mothers and the Children of Mary on both evenings.

Buys Montrepose Property.

Louis Schwartz, the Abeel street meat dealer, has purchased through Moore's realty office, the Sweet cottage, corner of Montrepose avenue and New street. Mr. Schwartz intends remodelling the place, after which he will make it his home.

Follow Argument With Killing

Brooklyn Man Killed His Brother-in-Law At Marlborough Friday During Argument Over Real Estate Transaction.

Following an argument over a real estate transaction, Gasper Gulotta of Brooklyn shot and killed his brother-in-law, Alexander Lauricella, at Marlborough early Friday afternoon.

Gulotta claims he shot in self defense; that about noon he and Lauricella were playing cards when they resumed an argument over real estate in which they were interested, in which they had engaged the previous evening. He says Lauricella drew a knife and he then shot in self defense.

The shooting took place at Lauricella's home about 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Dr. A. S. Ferguson was summoned but Lauricella died about twenty minutes after his arrival. A 22 calibre revolver was used and the bullet penetrated his chest and heart.

Gulotta was arrested by Justice of the Peace D. S. Hutchins and was brought to jail by Under Sheriff T. H. Haulenbeek and Deputy Sheriff Anderson V. Ellsworth of this city. H ewas held on a charge of homicide pending the outcome of an investigation this afternoon by District Attorney Traver, who was notified of the shooting. Coroner George Suiter also was notified.

In the house at the time of the shooting were Mrs. Antonia Gulotta, mgother of the man who did the shooting; M. C. Margiotta and Thomas Lauricella, a 12 year old boy.

An autopsy was performed this afternoon by Drs. Henry Van Hoevenberg and E. H. Loughran of Kingston.

Millionaires' Sons, Seeking Adventure, Killed Chicago Boy

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Ill., May 31.—Complete confession that they had kidnapped and slain 13 year old Robert Franks, son of a neighbor and friend of one of them, was made early today, the authorities announced, by Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, each 19 years old, both sons of millionaires.

The kidnapping was planned last November in a spirit of adventure, they said, and young Franks just chanced to come along on the day and at the time and place they had elected to abduct someone. He was killed almost at once, strangled after being rendered unconscious by a blow on the head with a chisel and the letter demanding $10,000 ransom sent to his father.

The confessions came at the close of a night of grilling when a chauffeur for the Leopold family casually gave information which completely shattered the carefully concocted alibi of the young suspects.

Thus is solved, according to the prosecutor, a murder that for ten days has puzzled and tantalized the authorities, ever since the nude, battered body of Robert Frnks, son of Jacob Franks, another millionaire and friend and neighbor of young Loeb, was found under a culvert in a lonely part of the South End of the city.

As the authorities have all along maintained would be the case, it was the pair of tortoise shell spectacles found near the boy's body that led them to the two youths.

When all the thousand and one clues had been followed up and discarded, time and again the detectives returned to those glasses as the one thing that would solve the case.

Every oculist in the city was enlisted and they and the officers delved into records, seeking the one tacles, the one card that would reveal to whom they had been sold. When it turned up at last, it bore the name of Nathan Leopold, Jr.

Almost apologetically, he was taken into custody and because young Loeb, his chum, was with him, he, too, was taken along for questioning.

Leopold did most of the talking. He admitted the glasses were his—lost, he thought, during one of many bird-studying expeditions into the woods in the vicinity of where the Franks boy's body had been found. He admitted a study of sex perversion had seemed to enter into the kidnapping and murder of young Franks. He talked freely and when prosecutors, detectives and newspapermen ran out of questions, he continued to supply information.

But all the way through he denied that he or Loeb knew anything about the revolting crime about which they were being questioned. He didn't know Robert Franks, he said, although the boy was friendly with Loeb, Leopold's chum, and often played tennis upon Loeb's courts.

State Attorney Crowe issued a formal statement:

"Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold have given a complete and voluntary confession to the murder of Robert Franks."

The thing was planned many months ago, out of a spirit of adventure. Young Franks was not the originally intended victim. He just happened along at the time that the trap was set to carry off any likely victim. He was killed by being stunned with the blunt end of a chisel wrapped in tape. Then he was strangled, carrying out the idea of killing him, hiding the body and prescription that would fit the spec- father in a letter.

The boys had brought ether and hydro-chloric acid, the latter to destroy their victim's features and delay if not prevent identification. For some reason it was not used.

A delay of a few more days, Leopold said, might have permitted him and Loeb to escape. He had made reservations to sail from New York June 11 for Europe to spend several months. Even if the glasses had been traced to him we felt confident that no one would so seriously have suspected him as to try to bring him back for questioning.

The clothing of their victim, he revealed, was burned in the basement of the Loeb home.

The fathers of the two youths, dumbfounded when they were aroused from their beds early today to be told of the confessions, refused to credit them. Leopold's millionaire father has been an invalid for years. Loeb's father, one of the most prominent business men of Chicago, has been ill since his son's arrest.

As the story of the crime unfolded its perpetration and the motive became more and more perplexing to the police. It was learned that the two youths formed and they typed the letter before they even knew the identity of their intended victim. It was stamped and sealed in its envelope and addressed after Robert Franks had been slain. The name of Jacob Franks was scribbled on the envelope as Loeb and Leopold were returning.

Leopold was to have taken an examination today at the University of Chicago for entrance to the Harvard Law School. He complained yesterday that he feared he would be unable to take the examination and wondered if police would permit him to take it in his cell.

St. Mary's Bazaar Ends Tonight

The St. Mary's Church Bazaar, conducted by the parishioners of St. Mary's this week at the school hall, has been very successful, both socially and financially. The bazaar as first planned was to be concluded on Thursday evening, but owing to the large variety of useful and handsome articles donated Thursday, the committee in charge decided to continue the affair until this evening. There are very many pretty booths, displaying very costly articles, which were emptied the opening nights, but replenished again for this evening. Great crowds have been attracted to the bazaar and a banner attendance is expected this evening.

COLLISION OF CARS NEAR SAUGERTIES

A man who gave his name as Jacob Weintz of Malden-on-Hudson, driving a Ford delivery truck on the Saugerties-Woodstock road, Friday evening, ran into William Burhans of Glasco, who was driving a Chevrolet touring car. The accident was reported to the police.

The Buick runabout of Harold Vincent of 1733 Greene avenue, Brooklyn, ran into the Ford touring car of William Linder of Saugerties on Thursday evening at 10 o'clock near the residence of Charles Clum on Barclay Heights. The Ford car was damaged considerably, the front axle and wishbone being broken besides other damages. The car was taken to Schoemag's Garage, Glasco, for repairs. The matter was reported to the police and a hearing was held in police court, Saugerties, Friday.

James Lounsbery, Ex-Co. Treasurer, Died Friday

The Hon. James Lounsberry, 67 years old, died Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock at his home in Accord, town of Rochester, after an illness of nearly a month. Although Mr Lounsberry had been in failing health for the past 4 or 5 years, it was not until about a month ago that his condition became serious.

Mr. Lounsberry was one of the prominent residents of Ulster county and during his lifetime served in public offices.

Mr. Lounsbery was born December 21, 1856, in Kerhonkson, and was a son of Ephraim D. and Mary Van Gaasbeck Lounsbery. He received his education in the schools there. There he learned telegraphy and accepted a position with the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company at Kerhonkson, which he held for several years.

In 1882 he purchased a property at Kerhonkson and opened a general merchandise store and also carried on a flour and feed milling business.

Before coming of age, Mr. Lounsberry evinced an active interest in politics and early took his place as a worker in the ranks of the Republican party in the town of Wawarsing. In 1883 he was elected collector of that town, serving one term; in 1888 he was elected supervisor and served until 1892. That same year he was nominated for assemblyman and was elected by a large majority.

So well did he serve his constituents that he was re-elected for four consecutive terms. While in the assembly he took great interest in all important measures before the legislature, especially those affecting the rights and interests of his district, among which were the bill and appropriation for building the Eastern New York Reformatory at Napanoch.

Later Mr. Lounsbery removed to a farm in the town of Rochester. In 1915 was elected a supervisor from that town and served continuously until 1919. In 1918 he was chairman of the board of supervisors. In 1919 he was elected county treasurer and served one term.

In 1882 Mr. Lounsbery was united in marriage to Miss Belle Duryea, daughter of Tunis H. Duryea of Accord. Three children were born to them, Grace, Phil and T. Duryea, who survive.

Socially Mr. Lounsbery was a member of Wawarsing Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, of the I. O. O. F. of Accord and the K. of P. of Kerhonkson.

The funeral will take place from his late residence Monday afternoon at two o'clock, standard time, with interment in the Pine Bush Cemetery, Kerhonkson.

"Slap in Snoot" Cost Wright $10

Edward Wright Found Guilty of Hitting Charles Sanderlin—Came Here on Vacation and Got Drunk—Other Cases in Police Court.

"I gave him a slap in the snoot because he said I was a drunkard and a liar," remarked Edward Wright, also known as Edward Brooks, on the witness stand today in police court when a hearing was held before Judge Robert G. Groves on the charge lodged against Wright by Charles Sanderlin of No. 60 Cedar street, who claimed that Wright had assaulted him. Frank W. Brooks appeared for Wright while Henry Klein appeared for Sanderlin.

The assault occurred in the kitchen of the apartment of Miss Mott on Wall street in January or February of this year. Sanderlin said it was February 15, while Wright was equally positive it was January 15. Wright walks with the aid of a cane.

At the close of the hearing Judge Groves found him guilty and fined him $10, which he paid.

Charles B. French who lives in Connecticut came here to spend the week-end. Friday evening he was found drunk on Belvedere street by Officer Dempsey. When he did not return to the place where he was spending his vacation his son began a hunt which began and ended at police headquarters. A fine of $5 was paid.

Frank Jones, a painter of 16 Ann street, was found drunk on the Strand early Friday morning by Officer Roodell. He was fined $5 and sentence suspended provided Jones returned to work.

Gerald M. Abbey of West Orange, N. J., and Isidore Levy of Newark, N. J., arrested Friday for speeding, forfeited $15 cash bail each by failure to appear.

James Burke and Joseph Rogers, two tourists, were arrested Friday by West Shore Detective Tierney for trespassing on railroad property. They were sentenced to five days each in the county jail, and sentence suspended provided they left town at once.

Chauncey M. Shultis of Woodstock came to Kingston Friday and was later found drunk on Washington avenue by Officer "Sime" Wood. Shultis paid a $5 fine.

Fred Brown, arrested Wednesday on a charge of public intoxication, was sentenced to 15 days in the county jail. He was picked up by Officer Hess.

Services Here Memorial Day

Memorial Day in Kingston was observed with the usual morning program at the various cemeteries of the city where the graves were decorated with an abundance of flowers. The services at the cemeteries were in charge of members of the Grand Army of the Republic, who were assisted by Spanish War veterans, the American Legion, Sons of Veterans and Ladies' Auxiliary and by the school children of the city.

Instead of the usual services and speaking at the city hall green, the public exercises were held at Wiltwyck Cemetery at 9 o'clock, the address being delivered by the Hon. A. T Clearwater. The program at the cemetery was opened by Mayor Hock who called the assemblage together, and the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the audience. The Rev. A. S. Cole of the Albany Avenue Baptist church offered prayer and the band then played "Amreica." Lincoln's Gettysburg address was read by George Hamm after which Judge Clearwater delivered the address of the day. After a selection by the band the pupils from the city schools decorated the graves in the cemeteries to which they had been assigned.

Throughout the day there were numerous visitors at the various cemeteries, where flowers were placed upon the graves of friends and relatives.

At St. Mary's Cemetery, a high Mass was offered by the Rev. Joseph B. Scully, who also delivered the address. The Boy and Girl Scouts of St. Mary's were in attendance and decorated the graves following the Mass. There was a very large attendance throughout the day visiting at the graves.

INVESTIGATE ROBBERY AT ELLENVILLE STORE

The store and repair shop of Howard J. Kelder of Ellenville was entered some time Tuesday night and goods valued at about $100 were taken, including a bicycle, a revolver, some ammunition and other hunters' supplies. Entrance was made from the front in the full glare of the lights of Main street. Mr. Kelder believes that when he went to his home that night the store was locked. Wednesday morning, Benjamin Carpenter, who resides over the store, found the door unlocked. Small change had been taken from the cash register which was not damaged in opening. The matter is being investigated by Chief of Police Barnes of Ellenville.

Special Bus Trips Sunday.

A special bus will leave High Falls on Sunday, June 1, for Kingston, leaving at 11:45 a. m., to connect with the Hudson river day line steamer at Kingston Point.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by Mary Graham Bonner

RED-SHOULDERED HAWKS

They lived in the woods, these two Red-Shouldered Hawks, and splendidly did they enjoy themselves.

Their home was made of sticks and twigs. Soft weeds and bits of bark made up the beds and the furniture for the family.

Their shoulders were of a reddish-brown color and they were hawks of course, but because of the reddish shade to the feathers upon their shoulders they had long ago been given the name of Red-Shouldered Hawks.

They were very busy a great deal of the time. There was a great deal always to be done.

In the first place they were fond of eating but for the most part they helped farmers for they ate field mice and moles.

But every once in a while—in fact quite, quite often Mr. Red-Shouldered Hawk would sing for his mate.

And his song was very beautiful.

Perhaps you didn't think that a hawk could sing?

Perhaps you only thought he could scream and screech or yell or make a loud, ugly noise?

Ah, but you don't know Mr. Red-Shouldered Hawk!

His voice was very clear and its beautiful tone resounded through the woods.

It was the voice of a wild creature and yet the voice of a creature who knows beauty and the loveliness of ringing sounds.

Again and again he would sing the same song. It was a song in which he tried to say how much he loved the woods and the great, free world and the beautiful air through which he could fly.

And he would sing his song so that you could feel the woods—you could feel the whispering wind and the warm, sweet air. You could feel the stillness and yet the coziness of the woods.

You could feel the warmth of the sunshine outside of the woods where the meadows were and where later the Red-Shouldered Hawks would have their meal.

But again and again came that long, strange Ke-o, Kee-oo sound that was so beautiful.

Mrs. Red-Shouldered Hawk looked at her mate and said:

"And yet they say some hawks cannot sing! Oh, but they should hear your voice.

"No voice could be more wonderful."

"I don't believe that," said Mr. Red-Shouldered Hawk.

"Well," said Mrs. Red-Shouldered Hawk, "to me it is very wonderful. And Mr. Blue Jay tries to copy your song.

"You see he thinks he is beautiful as he tries to sing as you do.

"He tries to copy your song because he would so like to sing the same one. But he can't. He can't get the beauty into his voice that you get into yours."

"I don't think my song is as wonderful as you say it is," said Mr. Red-Shouldered Hawk, "but I do know that I enjoy singing it.

"Somehow it seems to express what I feel. It is so hard to tell what is in your heart. Maybe you are afraid some will make fun of you.

"Maybe you feel that some will say: "'How silly to lie so in love with everything about you, the woods and freedom and all.'

"But if you sing no one will say such things to you for there is something in their hearts too which is the same as is in your own. They, too, have been too shy to speak.

"And so, because I've been given a voice though it is not remarkable, still I suppose you love it because in your heart, too, is the thrill of the woods of which I sing.

"That, I think, is the reason you love my song."

Hero on His Way

From New York comes report of a milk wagon driver who, on his early morning round, responding to a call for help, rushed to the aid of three little children and saved them from death by suffocation to which they were succumbing, and then, his rescue work done, weak and almost overcome, climbed to his wagon seat and drove on his way. Manifestly to that man the great service he had rendered was just an incident. That is the way with heroes and their work.

A FEW COMMON DISHES

It is the ordinary, every-day food which we serve so often that is of the most interest to us, and when we can, with a little manipulation, create something very tasty from the common foods, something worth while.

Braised Beef.—Try out two thin slices of fat salt pork and remove the scraps. Wipe three pounds of beef cut from the round and sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour; brown the surface in hot fat, turning carefully not to allow the juices to escape. Place on a trivet in a deep baking pan and surround with these vegetables: One-fourth cupful each of onion, turnip, celery and carrot, all cut fine; add one-half teaspoonful of peppercorns and salt. Cover with three cupfuls of boiling water, cover closely and cook at simmering temperature for four hours. Baste the meat every half hour and turn it after the second hour. Serve with a brown sauce made from the liquor in the pan.

Fried Salt Pork.—Cut the salt pork into thin slices and score each rind four times. Dip into flour and corn meal—two parts cornmeal and one part flour. Put into a greased, hot frying pan and cook until crisp and brown on both sides. Remove the pork and strain the fat. Put one and one-half tablespoonfuls of fat into the pan, add two and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour, one cupful of milk, salt to season and a little pepper, one tablespoonful of butter and one and one-half cupfuls of hot boiled potato cubes.

Cold Slaw.—Slice firm cabbage and put into a dish of cold water to crisp. Drain and pour over the following dressing at serving time: To two well beaten eggs add one-half cupful of sour cream and cook over hot water until thick; take from the fire and add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne. When the dressing is cold add to the well-drained cabbage.

DAIRY

CREAM DECREASES AS TEMPERATURE RISES

For many years the heating of milk to 140 or 154 degrees F. and holding it for 30 minutes has been considered proper pasteurization. Recently two sets of opinions have developed, one holding that the milk should be kept for 30 minutes at a minimum of 145 degrees F., while the other contends that it is sufficient to hold the milk for 30 minutes at a temperature of 142 to 145 degrees F. All agree that at no time should the temperature of the milk fall below 142 degrees F.

In the operation of commercial pasteurizers, it is impossible to avoid a fluctuation of less than 3 degrees. If a minimum of 145 degrees F. is maintained the milk would go as high as 148 degrees F.

The dairyman, however, is anxious to deliver to the consumer a bottle of milk with a good layer of cream. Unfortunately the consumer uses this as his only index of high-quality milk. The University of Illinois, in Bulletin 237, has compiled work upon the effect of temperature upon the creaming ability of milk. It was found that the volume of cream "decreases when the temperature of pasteurization rises from 142 degrees F. to 144 degrees F." It is stated further, "As the temperature goes higher, the decrease in volume of cream becomes rapidly more pronounced; at 145 degrees F., it amounts to slightly more than 10 per cent by volume; at 146 degrees F., it amounts to 16.6 per cent; and at 148 degrees F., to approximately 40 per cent."

Dr. William N. Price of the Detroit Creamery company, in reporting for the pasteurization committee of the International Association of Milk and Dairy Inspectors at their last Washington meeting, recommended the heating of milk to 142 to 145 degrees F., with the absolute minimum of 142 degrees F., and holding for 30 minutes.—B. W. Fairbanks, Colorado Agricultural College.

Outline of Scrub-Sire Trial Is Instructive

An outline of the proceedings for conducting a mock trial of scrub sires has just been issued by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. This material in mimeographed form tells briefly how to organize and conduct such a trial and suggests means of making the event entertaining as well as instructive.

The outline is designed particularly for the use of county agents and extension workers who are conducting field activities in live stock improvement. While designed chiefly for dairy bulls the trial may be used for other classes of animals as well. The compilation includes a scrub-bull funeral oration, and suggestions for entertainment features.

Persons who contemplate staging such an event may obtain from the department a collection of photographs showing various scenes taken at a typical scrub-sire trial. The outline just issued has been prepared in accordance with frequent requests and supplements other literature of the "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign conducted by various states and the United States Department of Agriculture.

Difficult Churning Is Remedied by "Starter"

There are several things that might cause difficult churning. The cream may not be properly ripened, it may be too rich or the temperature may not be correct. To ripen cream properly a "starter" is often used. To make the starter take from a pint to a quart of fresh, clean milk and put in a sterilized bottle. Keep it at a temperature of from 65 to 75 degrees F. till it curdles. If the curd is smooth and solid and the odor clean and pleasant it is satisfactory.

The cream should be kept sweet until ready to be ripened. Then heat it to about 70 degrees F. and add from 2 to 5 per cent of the starter. Keep near 70 degrees until it begins to thicken, the odor becomes pleasant, and the acid taste is distinct but mild, when it should be cooled to churning temperature, which is from 56 to 60 degrees in winter. Leave at this temperature from one to two hours before churning. If these directions are followed there will not be much trouble in the churning of the butter. Cream that is allowed to sour naturally in the fall and winter often makes churning difficult and the starter method is used to overcome this difficulty.

Turning Stock on Pasture

The first grass in spring is washy; that is, it contains a very high percentage of water and a relatively small amount of nutritive matter. Such grass really does a milk cow more harm than good. She likes it; especially so if she has received no succulent feed all winter long. She likes it so well, in fact, that she often refuses to eat either hay or grain once she has obtained a taste of the grass. This causes her to fall off in milk.

DRESS AND ITS DELECTABLE DETAILS

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

What a time it seems since trimmings have been of any great moment in millinery! Exquisite handwork, yes, but separate and distinct trimmings no—or at least in niggardly proportions. Now one begins to notice novelties, in feathers pasted and otherwise, and to encounter not only perky and splashy bows, according to the genre of the hat which bears them, and flowers in one way or another. Feathers have really ceased to be associated with hats which stand for dignity and suggest the dowager, but are worn by the frivolous as well. Occasionally, they have an upward lift to them, but more often they continue to droop off the right brim.

There are sports hats which have painted scenic effects over their crowns and others which are fashioned of an openwork straw, the type Rose Descat popularized last season. This style of hat continues to be shown in cloche effects, but for other than sports wear, the most noted tendency is to keep away from anything so trite.

Among the causes and effects attributed to the universal acceptance of the tailleur, may be cited the current history of black gloves and of fancy ones. The black glove has had a long and strong vogue, but the addition of such light accessories as neckwear and cuffs has automatically revived a desire for gloves of corresponding lightness. A beige suede so delicate in tone as to be almost ivory tinted, is often matched up with a creamy gardenia and stocklugs of the same hue the color scheme particularly stunning with black or navy.

Another fad of the season is the carved, chased or filigree gold bead. In fact, Paris has several bead novelties to offer and is wearing many kinds. There is, in fact, some doubt as to the continuance of platinum as the only recognized setting for precious stones. The gold slave bracelet and necklace, and these golden beads and the lovely gold vanity cases which abound along the rue de la Paix are causing these doubts, and being taken with significance.

Lonchamp set the seal of its approval on gay parasols, but it must be remembered that the chic Parisienne is never quite herself without an umbrella, so that it might naturally be supposed she would be the first to seize the opportunity to carry a sunshade.

There is no indication that the Department of Justice will swerve in its determination to prosecute Senator Wheeler notwithstanding the majority report of the Senate committee exonerating him. The United States district attorney in Montana has charge of the case, and will proceed with it in the ordinary course of his duties. Attorney General Stone has given no hint that he will interfere.

"Six crowded ships start for Europe" is a headline in a New York paper—and such headlines are of almost daily occurrence. These ships are crowded with American tourists going to Europe, where they will spend thousands of dollars, for which the United States gets no tangible returns except the pleasure of its people and the educational value of the trip. However, the expenditures of the tourists show one means by which Europe will get the money with which to pay its debts. The assertion that Europe can pay only in goods is manifestly false.

THE KING IS DEAD!

Once more the painful aftermath of one-man-control is being illustrated by the predicament in which Tammany Hall finds itself as a result of the death of its dictator-chieftain, Charles F. Murphy. for years Murphy was Tammany. He was uncommunicative, suspicious, a man who would tolerate not the slightest rivalry. With his going Tammany finds itself in a dilemma as to who shall be his successor. When Foley saw what he had to face he suffered heart failure. In the struggle to succeed Murphy, as is usually the case, a weak man will win out. It will be to the advantage of the nation, state and metropolis if the claws of the Tiger are trimmed, but again the fact is emphasized that any organization whose strength is centered in one man is in a bad way when that man passes from the scene.

Wilson was for seven years the Democratic party. When he was stricken the party became demoralized. They tied him to the saddle for a while and maintained the fiction of Wilsonism, but it would not work. Dictatorship in the United States is not hereditary, whatever Mr. Wilson's son-in-law may think to the contrary. The best insurance for party perpetuity is to have well-chosen lieutenants enjoying the thorough confidence of the chief, any one of whom can step into the pilot house and handle the wheel should the captain be laid low.

REBUKING AN "OVERRIDER."

It rather looks as if the Republican masses are with the President in the matter of his vetoes and opposed to an overriding Congress. There is Kansas, for example, whose farmers consented that their State pay a bonus to its soldiers but have developed much opposition to a Federal bonus, asking why they should be taxed to pay the political debts of their Congressmen. In consequence Senator Capper is now engaged in dodging something like a shower of brickbats. His long-time friend and supporter, Charles Lamar of Salina, is said to be after him with a sharp stick and has refused to handle his nomination papers, as formerly, telegraphing as follows: "If you do not deem it advisable to sustain the President in his decision on the bonus bill, "a great many of your friends and myself think it would be a waste of time to circulate your petition. If you really knew the conditions of the taxpayers of Kansas, you would cooperate with the President."

When Senator Capper failed to "cooperate" Mr. Lamar, after a canvass among the Senator's friends, returned his nomination papers with the following very pointed remarks: "It looks as if you are trying to buy votes with our money when you support the bonus bill far enough to override the President. Quite a few Salina business men thought you were intending to withdraw from the party, as you have not been supporting the President in any of his major policies. I believe we should send a Senator from Kansas this fall who would be more likely to follow the wishes of the party, and at least will try to cooperate on some measures with President Coolidge. If all our Kansas Representatives and Senators were Democrats, President Coolidge really would have as much support, and would not have been handicapped by having leaders of your type in his party help swing other Senators from him."

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

AS FREE AS THE AIR.

During the flu epidemic the value of oxygen in pure form was amply demonstrated.

As you know your doctor is worried in an illness about the wastes that accumulate in the body. He is anxious that the used up material in the blood should be removed, because that is what poisons the system. And so when the breathing becomes labored, and the skin a dusty hue, he knows that there is not sufficient oxygen getting into your system to burn up, or clear out the poisons manufactured in your body.

And so the idea of providing oxygen in tanks at the bedside has been introduced.

By means of a tube into the nostril held in place by a band about the head, you can breathe in the pure oxygen until the poisons are removed.

You begin to breathe more easily, and the skin loses its dusky hue.

In athletic contests, covering days of effort, oxygen has been introduced into the system to overcome fatigue. It is the fatigue products in the blood, which as it passes certain centers in the brain, make the brain, send an impulse to the lungs to breathe oftener.

Now this shows the value of oxygen in a severe illness where your very life is at stake.

What about that body of yours and its need of oxygen when you are not even sick?

The same rule applies.

Unless you get sufficient oxygen into your system, then you will be in the same box as when you were sick.

The only difference is that you are walking around, able to do your work, and of course do not realize just why you do not feel just up to your usual state of good health.

You have eaten well, have set around your office or home, or have been employed in an establishment where the ventilation is poor.

You are carrying too much waste—poison—in your system.

And the remedy?

You know what is needed—just the fresh air that is free to everybody. A walk of a mile or two, or just the outdoors itself for a while every day will give you the necessary oxygen to burn things up.

If you can't go out, you can ventilate your home and yet your supply of oxygen in that manner.

You can always get it. It costs nothing.

Come true, not all the things we make
With hands that tire and hearts that ache
The world will want, not all we plan
Will find a welcome—yet a man
Will have a few who will believe,
Will share his hopes, his dream perceive;
One blessing ev'ry path attends:
The great good fortune of good friends.

Not all the wealth we wish is ours;
Not all our seeds will bring us flow'rs;
Not all the visions seen ahead
Will turn to substance; roofs of red
And spires of silver, walls of jade
And streets of alabaster fade;
And yet, eternal as the hills,
One wealth our coffer often fills,
Remains when ev'ry vision ends—
The great good fortune of good friends.

Not all our motives understand;
However well our work is planned,
However well our work is done,
The world will always question one.
The little hurts, the sudden tears,
Their shadows throw across the years;
And some will doubt, a few will hate,
For so the small reward the great;
But all is well if heaven sends
The great good fortune of good friends.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

COURTSHIP is all promises—marriage is mostly com-promises.

A man enjoys kissing some girls a lot of the time, and a lot of girls some of the time; but what appals him about marriage is the prospect of kissing just one girl ALL of the time—and having to pretend to enjoy it.

Marriage is the Great Adventure, for most of us; and the only monotonous thing about it, dear heart, is the monotony of constant surprises.

Sometimes, a woman wonders if, after all, little George Washington's admission that he cut down the tree wasn't like the average man's admission of his sins, more of a boast than a confession.

The girl whose frock is a little too low, whose skirts are a trifle too high, whose lips are a bit too red, and whose slang is a shade too strong, might reflect that even the Lorelei couldn't have charmed men, if she had sung too loud.

A woman's love can survive the discovery that a man has robbed a bank or kissed another woman, but not the discovery that he uses a toothpick.

A man's love can survive the discovery that a woman has cheated at cards or flirted with another man—but not the discovery that she wears a transformation.

Love can survive a quarrel or a murder—but not an onion.

The Young Lady Across the Way

The young lady across the way says it's a great mistake for a man to carry a lot of money around in his coffers when the bank is so much safer.

Sitting Pretty

Mother—What was the cause of the disturbance in the sitting room last night after we left you and Charles to yourselves?

Daughter (blushing furiously)—He stole a kiss, mother.

Mother—He did? Did you not rebuke him?

Daughter—Yes. I—I—I sat on him. —Everybody's Magazine.

A matter that should not be overlooked is the wire labels that are put on at the nursery. The tree grows rapidly in diameter and the wire soon constricts the flow of sap and causes serious injury.

BRONCHITIS IS BEATEN!

Health Talk

By Froude & MacKinnon.

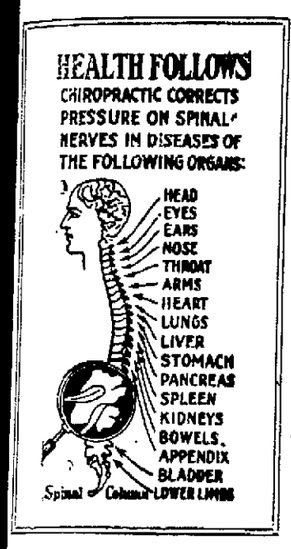

J. L. MacKINNON, D. C.

Bronchitis occurs in both acute and chronic conditions. Acute bronchitis is usually the aftermath of a cold, in fact, is sometimes called a cold in the chest. Accumulation of mucous in the bronchial tubes, and the necessity for its frequent expectoration, are the most pronounced symptoms.

When the cold proper has been cleared up, the bronchial affection usually disappears shortly after, but sometimes becomes chronic, developing an annoying cough, with consequent hoarseness and soreness.

The real cause is faulty transmission of vital energy from the brain to the respiratory tract. By our chiropractic health method the interference responsible for the trouble is removed, and Nature takes its normal course to Health.

BRONCHITIS IS REMOVED.

"I highly recommend Chiropractic adjustments for bronchitis. I suffered for years with bronchitis and can honestly say I have been entirely cured through Chiropractic adjustments, for which I am very grateful."—Berth G. Hill, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 2021-H.

THE WHY, WHEN AND WHERE OF FASHIONS

About 1500, as the story goes, a girl in Venice had her sweetheart drafted into the navy. In her hours of leisure and grief, she imitated in thread, the delicate designs of coral and seaweed, until she brought forth a new idea in fabrics, light and beautiful. This was the origin of the famous Burano bobbin lace, according to the legend. At that time, and for some years after, Venice and other parts of Italy furnished the luxuries in fashions. The French, however, were anxious to stop the expenditure of money for them in foreign countries and wished to develop an industry of their own. So they passed a number of luxury laws around about 1600 forbidding the import of foreign laces under heavy penalties. Colbert encouraged the French industry at a time when every piece of wearing apparel, even footwear, was trimmed with lace.

By 1665 the industry of point de France was well established at Alencon, originally an imitation of Venice laces. Other cities had about this time developed individual ideas and manners of making handmade laces. In 1692 when at the battle of Steinkerke the French officers were called into action before having time to arrange their neckties, a new idea for using lace originated, which was in fashion for many years. These cravats displaced the Elizabethan ruffs and falling coillars of Charles I and II. Some of these ruffs which looked like millstones around the necks of the wearers, consumed as much as 40 to 50 yards of lace.

In the XVIII century, the Spanish mantillas were made of the finest laces of the period. The etiquette in laces developed to a large degree, so that during the reign of George II in England, we find summer and winter laces already well developed. The French Revolution eliminated laces for a time only, but soon came the bobbinet made on the machine. About 1833 came the first cotton laces which lacked the beauty of the silk or flax thread laces.

Why Oakland's Chassis is more advanced

(1) Oakland's new L-head engine is a masterpiece of light-six engineering. It incorporates the very latest developments in motor design.

(2) The transmission is a unit with the engine. Gears of the finest alloy steel and liberal ball bearings, insure quiet and long life. Gear shifting is actually a pleasure.

(3) The rugged, drop-forged, "I" beam front axle was purposely designed for this car. Its correct construction insures easy steering and safe driving.

(4) Oakland's semi-floating rear axle is the last word in axle design. Its nickel steel gears, Hyatt and New Departure Bearings and spiral bevel gear drive make it silent and efficient.

(5) Oakland's four-wheel brakes are built into the chassis. Many months of service by tens of thousands of owners prove conclusively that this construction is most necessary and desirable.

(6) Oakland's frame is of pressed steel, 5-32 of an inch thick and is rigidly braced with five cross members. In comparing frames, do not neglect the fact that the thickness of the steel is very important.

(7) The steering gear is unequalled for easy and convenient driving. All engine controls, as well as horn button and lighting controls, are mounted on the steering wheel, an exclusive feature.

(8) Demountable disc steel wheels—five of them—are standard equipment on all models. On most cars you pay extra for them.

Long, easy-riding springs; Harrison radiator with heavily nickeled shell; completely enclosed universal joints and tubular drive shaft are other important features.

Examine the Oakland Six yourself. You will then understand why the True Blue Oakland is being chosen by so many who have decided to get the most and the best for their money this year.

Allies of Fire

FIRE is resourceful, crafty, treacherous. Its allies are everywhere. In every home, every plant, every warehouse, there are hundreds of them waiting until carelessness opens the way for destruction.

More than half of America's ONE BILLION THREE HUNDRED MILLION bonfire is a colossal monument to American carelessness. More than half of it is an unnecessary addition to the fire loss paid for by policyholders throughout the country.

This agency can help you prevent fire on your premises and will work with you in eliminating the hazards that may cause you a serious loss.

A word from you will bring an immediate response.

Colonials Down Doherty Sox

Silk Sox Err Six Times and Pitchers Go Wild—Colonials Make But Three Hits—Morgan in Good Shape in Morning Contest.

Taking advantage of the wildness of four pitchers, the Colonials sent six runs across the plate in the eighth inning of the morning game against the Doherty Silk Sox Memorial Day at the Fair Grounds and those six tallies were more than enough to put the game on ice. It was a thrilling finish in spite of the fact that the runs were scored on but one hit, an error and five passes to first, doing the greater part of the damage.

The game was marred by poor playing by both infields. Dewey was the offender in the Colonial infield with an error on an easy grounder. Morgan also made a bad play and let two runs in. Fritz Knothe, erstwhile Passaic High School basketball star, found that he was quite lost at short. He made three bungles and Braun at third contributed a boot in the hectic eighth that helped the Colonials in their winning way.

The locals put men on in each of the first three innings but it was not until the fourth that they were able to push a run across.

Knothe booted both Deegan's and Schwab's offerings and the runners advanced to second and third when Robins sacrificed. This started the fourth inning rally. Coyle flied to Lohr and it looked as if the golden opportunity for a score was gone. Richards went wild and walked the next two batters and forced a run across. Currie relieved Richards and ended the rally by fanning Dewey.

Raymond was safe on a hard liner to short in the second but was cut down by Jack Robins's pretty peg to second on an attempted steal. Crowell and Eschen singled past third to open the sixth. Raymond bunted to Morgan and in attempting to get Crowell at third Morgan whirled and threw into left field and two runs were across before the ball was returned to the infield. Lohr lifted a long fly to right center and Leo Dugan made a beautiful running catch. Schwab camped under Schneider's fly and Knothe ended the inning with a grounder to Dewey.

After Smith fanned in the seventh, five straight hits were registered by the Patersonites. They threw away a fine chance to score more than the two runs that they did tally by poor base running. Currie hit to center and Braun followed suit. Crowell lined past Flynn to left field and Currie failed to touch third on his way to the plate and when the ball was returned to the infield, Morgan whipped it to Flynn, who touched the bag. Eschen and Raymond both singled to left and sent two runs in and the bases were full when Howard, "King" Lohr strode to the plate. It was a fine setting for the Sox home run king and he tried hard to send in his teammates but his best effort was a fly that found a resting place in Leo Dugan's glove. That ended a hard inning for the Colonial rooters and players.

Morgan tightened up in the eighth and set down the hard-hitting Patersonites in order. The Colonials scored their six tallies in the last of the eighth and put the game in the bat-bag. Schwab was out, Currie to Schneider, and Robins walked, the first of five Schirickmen to get a pass in this session. Coyle hit over Braun's head. Incidentally that was the sixth consecutive game in which Bobby has hit safely. Morgan hit a fast grounder down the third base line that Braun should have converted into a double play. He fumbled the ball and the bases were full. Currie went up in the air and walked the next two men to face him, forcing in the tying runs. Tesreau then took Currie's place on the mound and proceeded to walk Flynn and the winning run was forced across the rubber. He had two balls on Raskin when he was derricked and "Lefty" Herschler was rushed to the scene to stop the Cols. He finished walking "Tubby" and then got Deegan on a hard liner. Herschler knocked the ball down and Crowell fielded it, Herschler covering first. On the play Dewey scored and Flynn raced all the way from second to the plate on a daring bit of base running. The Jersey aggregation was caught flat-footed on the play and Flynn was within 20 feet of the plate before Herschler attempted to make a play. "Porky" easily beat the throw. Schwab ended the inning with a fly to Braun. The crowd went wild this inning and the grandstand and bleachers were in a constant uproar during the rally.

Famous Lawyer Sought as Jury Fixer.

WILLIAM J. FALLON.

William J. Fallon, one of the foremost criminal lawyers in the New York bar, is sought by the police, following a confession of Charles W. Rendigs, convicted of perjury, that he accepted money from Fallon for tying up the jury on which he served in the trial of Edward M. Fuller, convicted later of conducting a bucket shop.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

ARCHANGELA PALADINI

An Italian historical painter was born at Pisa in 1599, and died in 1622, aged twenty-three. She was the daughter of Filippo Paladini, an eminent artist of that city, who instructed her in the Art. She attained great excellence in portrait-painting, and also excelled in embroidery and music, and sang exquisitely.

These uncommon talents, united with an agreeable personality, procured her the friendship of Maria Magdelena, Arch Duchess of Austria who lived at Florence, and in whose court the artist spent the last years of her life.

JEWS IN ENGLAND.

The first widespread movement to obtain full political rights for the Jews of England was commenced ninety-five years ago today, when the Hebrews of the country presented a petition to Parliament. Six years later, in 1835, the movement had progressed so far that David Solomons was elected sheriff of London, and an act was passed enabling him to hold the office. Two years later another Jew, Moses Montefiore, was chosen for the same position, and was knighted by the Queen, being the first Hebrew to be so honored. In 1849 Baron Lionel de Rothschild was elected to Parliament, and was again returned in 1852 and 1857, but was not permitted to take his seat until 1858, when an act was passed permitting Hebrews to sit in the House of Commons. Alderman Solomons became the first Jewish lord mayor of London sixty-nine years ago and was afterwards elected to Parliament. In 1868 Benjamin Disraeli, of Jewish extraction, became Prime Minister of Great Britain. Since then Jews have been eligible to every office within the gift of the English people, and many of the leading statesmen of England are and have been Hebrews.

BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY OF WALT WHITMAN "THE GOOD GRAY POET."

Walt Whitman was born in West Hills, Long Island, May 31, 1819. His father was a carpenter, and Walt, after a sporadic education, left school at twelve to follow his father's trade. Of a restless, wandering disposition, he quickly tired of the hammer and saw, and entertained a transient ambition to become a lawyer. After a brief experience in a barrister's office, he entered the employ of a physician and quickly acquired a great knowledge of medicine. His rolling-stone proclivities led him next to a printer's shop where he served as a "devil." He then became an itinerant teacher in rural schools, although himself without formal education. He soon returned to the printer's case and as a tramp printer with occasional experiences as a farm hand, he roamed all over the United States and Canada. There were many geniuses among those wandering printers of the old days, but most of them were destined to be mute and inglorious, and to die unhonored and unsung. Whitman was a notable exception and the observance of the Whitman centenary will be incomplete, if the few remaining hobo printers do not participate. From the printer's case, Whitman graduated to the editorial chair, an easy and common transition in those days when most printers could serve in the dual capacity of printer and editor and even in that of reporter. Most newspaper writers in that time also had a working knowledge of the typographical art. All of these years Whitman was seeking poetical experience but it was not until he was past thirty that he hit upon the curious, irregular, original and recitative measures which are decidedly Whitmanesque. His utter disregard for literary form and his lawlessness of expression first found recognition in his "Leaves of Grass," 1855. He went to Washington to attend to a wounded brother in Civil War times and held several government clerkships, being discharged because he was accused of having published an indecent book. He left Washington in 1874 to settle in Camden, N. J., where he lived until his death in 1892.

Flynn's Homer Beat Silk Sox

Colonials's New Scintillating Third Baseman Hit Timely Clout Scoring Three Rounds—Culloton Pitched Good Ball—Schirickmen Had a Perfect Day.

It was a lot for the Colonials to take the first game of the doubleheader from the Silk-Sox Decoration Day morning and many fans who saw the game felt sure that the visiting aggregation would take the measure of the Colonials in the afternoon. But there were several young men who had different ideas about the ability of the Silk Sox and the Schirickmen. One of these was "Porky" Flynn, another was Bud Culloton; for the rest of the several might be named the rest of the Colonial outfit. But it was too much "Porky" and too much Culloton that caused the Sox to go down to defeat in the second game.

Flynn came to bat with Dugan and Dewey on the bases in the sixth and took it upon himself to score his teammates and himself with a Herculean swat over the left field fence. "Porky" picked an opportune moment and a fine setting for his homer. Those three runs proved to be the very three that the locals needed to count a win over the fast semi-pro club from Jersey. Besides his homer, Flynn played a bang-up game at the hot corner, accepting seven chances without a miss. He has a lightning-like peg and throws from any position. He comes in fast on bunts, covers far to his left and goes deep into left field for flies. His sparkling play at third was easily the feature of the game from a fielding standpoint.

Bud Culloton was on the mound and went the full route. Except for the third, fifth and ninth innings, Bud had the visitors well in hand. Clever play behind Bud saved him from being scored on in the third. In the fifth, the Patersonites combined two hits with a base on balls for a run. From then until the ninth, the Ferdhamite set down the opposing batters in order. He was hit quite hard in the ninth but tightened up after one run had been scored off him and got the last two men to fly to Dugan. The Colonials got fine pitching in both games and Raymond and Lohr, the heavy hitters who have broken up more than one game this year, garnered but four hits between them from the combined offerings of Culloton and Morgan, the southpaw ace.

Bud got himself in a bad hole in the first by walking the first two men to face him. The next two lifted flies to Flynn at third and "King" Lohr fanned in the pinch. In the second, Smith's double went for naught when Herschler grounded to Culloton to end the inning. Two more Sox safeties went to waste in the third session. Braun singled and was forced at second by Richel, Culloton to Dewey. Eschen made the second out on a fly to short. Then came one of the prettiest plays of the day. Raymond hit past Dewey to left field and Richel tried to make third on the hit. But he didn't figure on Bill Schwab's reliable right arm. Bill cut him down by a perfect throw to third.

But the Sox kept everlastingly at it and finally they got a man around in the fifth. Smith hit a hot liner to Coyle and died at first. Herschler tried to cross the Colonial infield by laying down a bunt. Flynn came racing in and made a fast pick-up and pretty throw to Coyle, retiring the batter. Braun walked and scored on successive singles by Richel and Eshcen. Dugan made a fine running catch of Raymond's fly to end the inning.

The Colonials managed to get a man as far as third with but one down in the third inning but Fritz Knothe handled two hard chances faultlessly and killed the rally, leaving Coyle stranded on the far corner. Coyle's double which opened this inning marked the seventh straight game in which the big first baseman has hit safely.

After going out in order in the fourth and fifth sessions, the locals went out after the winning runs in the sixth. Bud Culloton started the rally which won his own ball game, with a single over Eschen's head. Dugan lined hard at Eschen who scooped up the ball and touched second, forcing Culloton. Dugan beat the throw to first. Dewey singled to center and Dugan stopped at second. "Porky" Flynn fouled off a couple good pitches and then picked one to his liking and sent it over the left field fence. With that one blow, Flynn had endeared himself to Kingston fandom. Raskin followed with a clean hit to left field and it looked as if another Jersey twirler would be gracing the mound. Deegan lifted a long fly to Lohr and Schwab hit hard to Knothe and was thrown out at first to end the inning.

But three men faced the Colonial ace in each of the innings following their score in the fifth until the ninth. "King" Lohr and Schneider singled to open the ninth. It had all the earmarks of a ninth inning rally until Leo Dugan came to the rescue with two sparkling catches on hard hit balls to center. The runners didn't attempt to advance after either catch, having too much respect for the little center fielder's wing. Crowell was sent in to bat for Herschler and came through with a single to center, scoring Lehr and putting Schneider on third. Culloton worked on the next batter and fanned him, ending a hectic inning.

The Colonials made their lead safer in the eighth, taking advantage of the misplays of the Sox. Dugan lead off with a single and Dewey laid down a bunt. Herschler fielded the ball cleanly and his throw to Schneider beat Dewey to the bag by feet. Schneider obligingly fumbled and both runners were safe. Flynn went out on a hard shot to the pitcher, Dewey and Dugan advancing to second and third on the put-out. Raskin's slashing grounder was too hot for Knothe and the ball rolled past Fritz into left. Dugan scored but Dewey was caught by a perfect throw to the plate. Deegan and Schwab singled, scoring Raskin. Robins lined to Eschen to end the inning.

The fans who braved the cold weather and wind were more than rewarded by one of the best games ever staged on the Fair Grounds park. The locals played tip-top ball, taking advantage of every misplay of the Sox and holding the Sox well in hand all the time. The boys were on their toes all the time and when the opportunity to score a double victory over the highly touted visitors came, they were ready and willing.

Jordan and Artie Rice were the umpires for both games and the officiating was the finest that could be asked.

MACHINERY TAKES THE DRUDGERY OUT OF HOUSEWORK

Proper Tools Are Necessary For Women's Work As Well As Men's.

No woman would think much of her husband if he were still writing his office letters with a pen, using an old press copybook, taking no business or professional journals and failing to keep in touch with what was going on in his own line in new things. Trust a man to have the last word in machinery, whether it be an electric tractor for his plowing or a four-bladed knife for his pocket. And women? What do they do? Work with a broken caseknife in the kitchen, famed for being able to perform miracles with a hairpin or a buttonhook. Carry water for miles for years while men pipe it a few yards for an emergency; go round and round doing drudgery, working with their hands and feet when a trot or machine would set them free for more interesting and important efforts.

For Instance.

It's a nuisance and a lot of hard work to empty a washing machine with a bucket. If the laundry offers no floor drain this method must be resorted to unless a special siphoning device is at hand. Such a device, to be used with any washing machine, is a combination filler and drainer used in a certain model laundry. It consists of a siphoning device, with an attachment to screw on to the bottom of a faucet, a piece of hose fifty-six inches long which carries the water from the washing tub to the siphoning tube, and a second hose twenty inches long which discharges the water to the bottom of the sink.

When a tub is to be filled the two ends of the shorter hose are attached to the two faucets, with the short end at the hot water and the attachment above the siphon device, at the cold. If only hot water is desired, only that faucet is turned on, but water of any desired temperature may be delivered into the machine by turning on both faucets.

For Emptying.

If the machine is to be emptied the faucet connector attached to the hot water is unscrewed and the hose end allowed to hang loose, the cold water being turned on with the drain still in place. The flow of cold water creates a siphoning action and the water in the tub rises through the long hose and is discharged into the sink.

It requires less than a minute to connect the device to the faucet and start the draining. Draining a twelve-gallon tub with the minimum water pressure (twenty-five pounds per square inch) takes five minutes and five seconds, or a little over two gallons a minute. With a lower water pressure a longer time (seven minutes) is required to empty the tub, but the above mentioned pressure is a minimum figure and less than the average likely to be encountered.

The tub can be filled at the rate of 1.64 gallons a minute from the cold water faucet and 7.2 gallons in the same length of time from the hot. The difference shows loss due to the time required for the cold water to pass through the siphoning device and into the hose directed into the tub; the hot water passes directly into the hose.

The complete device—siphon and hose—is a very low-cost appliance and one which saves much in time

A POTATO SALAD WITH SEVERAL NEW FLOURISHES.

Boil potatoes in their skins. While they are boiling get ready a finely chopped onion and a few stalks of celery cut into small pieces. Place these in a bowl, add salt and a well seasoned French dressing to which catchup has been added. Dice the potatoes hot, moisten them well with the dressing, and let them stand until cold.

Good proportions are three cups diced potatoes (three medium-sized ones will make that quantity), two teaspoons onion, one-fourth cup celery, one-half teaspoon salt and one-fourth cup of dressing.

For the mayonnaise to accompany this salad: stir two egg yolks in the top of the double boiler, for a minute. Add slowly two tablespoons olive oil and, when well mixed, two tablespoons cider vinegar. Set this over the hot water and cook, stirring it constantly until very thick. Remove from the fire, stir until smooth and set aside to cool.

Then beat in slowly two more tablespoons of oil and season with one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon dry mustard, one-half teaspoon sugar and a dash of paprika. Fold in one-hlf cup cream beaten stiff, (or use less cream and one egg white).

Garnish with hard boiled eggs and ribbons of green pepper. Surround with tiny slices of frankfurter.

Summer Lampshades For Electric Lighting Fixtures

Parchment Replaces Heavy Silk and Fringe.

Electricity has made it possible for every woman of moderate circumstances, who lives in an electrified home to have flexible lighting. In the dreary winter months the elaborate lamp shades made of colorful silk and chiffon add charm and warmth to our homes which our grandmothers could never achieve; while in summer they may easily be replaced with cool parchment or imitation parchment shades which again add that important last touch to the rooms.

A Vase For Flowers.

Many women who own elaborate lamp bases store these away with the shades for the summer and replace them both with colorful, inexpensive vases which have been wired for electricity and equipped with imitation parchment shades or colored glass shades which are very much in vogue now and particularly good for summer use. Today it isn't necessary to have the vase drilled full of holes and render it more or less useless when it no longer serves as a lamp base, for there is a three pronged attachment which fits inside of the vase which may be bought with one, two or three lamp sockets. The cord hangs over the side and may be connected to any convenient outlet. The attachment may be removed any time without injury to the vase which may then be used for flowers or decorative purposes.

Water-Color Paper.

Imitation parchment lamp shades are really very easy to make and are often even more effective than real expensive parchment and far better for beginner's experimentation. Many have been very successful with plain water-color paper. The materials required are a wire frame, water-color paper, the amount depending upon the number of shades one wishes to make, one bottle of turpentine, one of linseed oil, and one of white shellack. Tubes of the desired color oil paint and three varying sizes of paint brushes together with whatever else one wishes to finish the shades are necessary. Stencils may be purchased if one wishes a small design and is unable to do it in free hand.

How It Is Done.

The water-color paper should be fastened to a table-top or any flat surface with thumb tacks. Then apply a mixture which is made of equal parts of turpentine and linseed oil in rotary motion with a small wad of linen or other napless material. This should be applied about two or three times on each side of the paper or until it will not readily absorb more of the mixture. Then permit it to dry thoroughly. When it has finished drying the background is rubbed in with the paints of the desired colors. For the inside the colors which have the best reflective value should be used such as gold, orange, warm yellow or soft pink. The outside may be treated in the same color, or a contrasting one which will blend with the other furnishings of the room. After this has dried the decoration is applied and finally the shade is shellacked.

When the shellack has dried the shade is cut out and fitted around the frame, the ends are lapped over and glued and the edged are sewed on to the frame and bound with silver, gold or an appropriate color cord to finish it off.

BUTTONS AND CHAINS PREVENT STUMBLING

The electric switch in a dark room is about the most elusive thing imaginable. Even when a person is in familiar surroundings there is always considerable stumbling and consequent rubbing of aching shin-bones when entering a dark room or getting up out of bed in the middle of the night in search of something or other. It was probably the futility of finding one's way in the dark that inspired the inventor to phosphorescent electric pushbuttons and pull-chains. Now one need only look around the room for the tiny glowing ball to find the electric light switch.

What Queen Victoria Did.

What is believed to be the earliest recorded example of indirect lighting is credited to Queen Victoria, when in 1890 at her suggestion, the Durbar room at Osborne was illuminated entirely by "deflected" light, not a lamp or fixture or any course of light being noticeable.

At King Tut's Tomb.

A great deal of curiosity has been shown by the public to know how Mr. Carter brought electricity to the tomb of Tutankhamen. This was done by tapping the wires that provide electricity for the illumination of the tomb of Rameses VI, directly above that of the former Pharaoh, and which was wired some time ago.

THE GOING AWAY PARTY ENDS THE SOCIAL CALENDAR

Remember That Spring Weather Is Subject to Change and Prepare the Refreshments Accordingly.

The going away party has become as much a part of our existence as our summer vacations. It is usually given two weeks or ten days in advance of the departure for the country. This party serves two purposes. It definitely ends the winter and spring social season and discharges all social obligations, leaving the slate clean, so to speak, ready to begin all over again upon returning in the fall.

The kind of entertainment one may give depends somewhat upon the number of people to be entertained. Where one's acquaintance is small a luncheon, formal or informal, with a bridge game or mah jongg afterwards is in good taste, but when one's acquaintance is large an afternoon "at home" will be found by far the better. Then any number of friends may drop in and may be entertained without special effort. The refreshments must always be appropriate for the occasion—and the weather. It is a wise woman who, contemplating such a party, gives considerable thought to the refreshments, for what may be good on a warm spring day will be very wrong if not hopeless for a cold, drizzly one, of which we are having plenty. Spring is generally as changeable as it is beautiful, and hostesses must be guided accordingly. Often a hostess deluded by a warm spell decides to have all cold refreshments for her reception. Then, with ice cream, iced tea, frosted chocolate, salad and cake on hand the day arrives wet and cold and—speaking in the vernacular of the street—she's stuck!

No Need To Worry.

A clever hostess, of course, never finds herself in such a position. How does she do it? By carefully planning and providing against it. She plans only the solid portion of her menu such as sandwiches, cakes and salads and the liquids she leaves until the morning of the appointed day. Then if it rains or the weather is otherwise disagreeable, she puts electricity to work. Such a hostess presumably owns all the modern electrical table appliances—a wired tea-wagon, or, at any rate, her living room is equipped with enough convenience outlets to which she may easily attach the electric tea kettle, coffee percolator, toaster or waffle iron and serve any of these hot refreshments with sandwiches, cakes, salad and ice cream. This is one of the many emergencies that have no terrors for the woman who uses electric service. As any woman who has seen or used the small electric appliances knows they are really charming in appearance and for this reason free use of them can be made anywhere at any time. In fact it is getting to be quite "the thing" among people who know how to use the electric tea kettle and coffee percolator on their tea table so that they can make freshiced tea and coffee by using it hot and chilling it with cracked ice in a tall glass. There is really no drink that can quite equal fresh iced tea or coffee made this way. A hostess who owns these appliances gives her friends the best and therefore cannot help being popular.

Early Hotel Lighting.

The first electrically lighted hotel in this country, it is claimed, was the Prospect House, at Blue Mountain Lake in the Adirondacks. The illuminating current was turned on in October, 1882.

Twice the Light From the Same Source By Eliminating Glare

When one looks at an object, the image of it is formed on the retina of the eye and its brightness is proportional to the area of the pupil.

Now the pupil increases or diminishes, within certain limits, according to the character of the light source. It acts like a "visual doorway" letting in or shutting out light depending upon its brilliancy.

The practical importance of this action may be illustrated as follows: Take two workmen each working under the light of a 150 watt lamp, set at the proper distance. In one case, the lamp is unshaded and in the direct line of vision. In the other, glare is entirely eliminated by the proper shading and location of the lamp. In the case of the first workman, the pupils of the eyes will contract to approximately 1/8 of an inch. In the case of the second, they will expand to about 3-16 of an inch. Inasmuch as the brightness of the images on the retina are proportional to the square of the diameter of the pupil, these images in the eyes of the second workman will be twice as bright as those of the first.

The light source was exactly the same in each case, yet the second workman enjoyed more than twice as much light as the first.

Glare from artificial light is not only irritating and harmful to the eye, but it is exceedingly wasteful as well.

Modern fixtures like the Duplexalite and the Kitchen Unit are scientifically correct and give the best results.

and lifting and the handling of pails on wash day in the house where wash tubs and machines are not permanently installed.

The Flock of Washers.

Washing machines come in flocks and droves, but there are only a few distinctive types. A big point is to have a stable, well equipped concern back of the machine, building and servicing it well—a concern that won't go out of business and leave you high and dry with a discontinued model. Some women are wedded to the revolving reversing cylinder idea; some think the vacuum cups do the best work; some like a simple empty tub that oscillates; and there are tubs that do their own wringing (spelled with a "w") whirling the clothes in a flat, perforated tub; there are tubs that pride themselves on the small amount of space they occupy, and one small, less than half price motor in a cylinder just hangs on the edge of bath and laundry tub and does the work.

It is no longer "Shall I have a washing machine?" but "Which one?"

Consider the Electric Iron.

The electric ironer, be it hand iron or large machine, takes much of the heat and labor out of the day that follows wash day, eliminates the marathons traversed between stove and ironing board, in quest of hotter irons, and shortens the whole procedure.

Cutting the Corners in Cookery.

All these devices have to do with actual labor, motor work, muscle saving—and not a word have we said of cooking devices in all this, and they, again, are a whole three-volume novel in themselves.

Think of the pressure cooker that gets up a heat above boiling point and makes tender a tough fowl in three-quarters of an hour, or cans corn in one hour instead of three.

Think of the fireless cookers, gas and electric, that cook while you shop or walk with the children, or even matinee or bridge, or mah jongg. You no longer have to hang around the cook stove and watch it while it works, what with the automatic heat controls and fireless principle applies to stoves little and big.

All sorts of clever devices for table cookery, electric coffee and tea pots, waffle irons, grills—all these cut out steps between kitchen and dining room and improve food at the same time, as it is served hotter. These are especially for the small family and witchenetter. For them, too, there comes the broiler and the bake pot that set on top of the stove or gas plate, and mean that these two healthy and delicious ways of cooking may be used, minimizing the frying pan, with owning or heating up a big oven.

"Votes for women" was a good slogan; it was good for the nation, especially locally, to get women into civic housekeeping, and it was good to have general justice done, but as far as the women are concerned, the rank and file of them, we think, that "tools for women" is just as important an attainment.

LIGHTS ASSURE SAFETY IN HUDSON AUTO TUNNEL.

Two huge steel shields are advancing foot by foot toward each other through the rock and silt under the Hudson river. When they meet, there will be completed one of the world's great engineering achievements—the vehicular tunnel joining New York and New Jersey.

Thousands of automobiles, trucks, horse-drawn wagons and pedestrians will go from state to state every day through the parallel tubes, each thirty feet in diameter and nearly two miles long. The problem of lighting the tunnel has presented unusual difficulties, because of the need of a very high standard of illumination to prevent accidents and congestion.

A scale model, built one inch to the foot and ten feet long, was designed for experimental purposes, and from this miniature tunnel the lighting system has been determined upon.

Light units will be placed every twenty feet, and to prevent glare, will be sunk into the sides of the tunnel and covered with diffusing glass. These lights will be so located as to make use of the reflection from the walls and ceiling to prevent the casting of shadows between motor cars on the roadway. Particular attention was given to this detail, because of the frequent accidents above ground due to sharply contrasting shadows.

Electricity will also ventilate the big tubes under the river. Compressed air forced through the ducts beneath the roadway will supply the tunnels from expansion chambers every fifteen feet, and electric exhaust fans in the ceiling will carry off the vitiated air as it rises.

June and December.

The average home in America uses electric light but an hour and a half a day during the month of June while in December the electric lights are turned on for almost seven hours daily.

Glassware That Warns.

Special electric lighting fixture glassware has been invented that gives warning when the electric bulb it shades has lost its proper illumination the bowl, globe or shade turns from a lustrous color to a dark, yellow hue.

Amber and Electricity.

The word "electricity" comes from the classified Greek word "elektron" meaning amber. It was the magnetic power of amber when rubbed that first called electricity to the attention of the ancients.

STATE OF NEW YORK, SUPREME COURT, ULSTER COUNTY.—Grace V. Merritt, Plaintiff, against Charles H. Merritt and Ella D. Merritt, his wife, Frederic H. Goodyer, The Ulster County Savings Institution, Elva H. Bogart and The Kingston Cooperative Savings and Loan Association, Defendants

In pursuance and by virtue of an interlocutory decree and judgment of partition granted herein by this Court at a Special Term thereof held at the County Court House in the City of Kingston, Ulster County, N. Y., on the 8th day of May, 1924, and duly entered in the office of the Clerk of said County on the 10th day of May, 1924, I, the subscriber, the referee in said judgment and decree named, will sell at public auction at the front door of the County Court House, Kingston, N. Y., on the 18th day of June, 1924, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, the following described lands and premises, being the same described in the complaint and interlocutory judgment and decree herein, to-wit:

First Parcel.

(1-a) All that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Kingston, Ulster County, New York, bounded and described as follows. All that certain low ground farm, formerly belonging to Frances C. Voorhees and Anna Voorhees, both deceased, with the farmhouse and outbuildings thereon and lying on the easterly side of Clinton Avenue and between said avenue and the Esopus Creek and lying a part thereof on each side of the lands called Voorhees Lane and also on each side of the Ulster and Delaware Railroad Company and containing in all about thirty-five acres and bounded generally as follows: Southwesterly by said Clinton Avenue; easterly by lands of Howard Hendricks, Cornelius Burhans, estate of Lewis N. Hermance, deceased and Wessel Ten Broeck; northerly by the Esopus Creek; southerly by lands of Joe Roe and the Ulster and Delaware Railroad Company and Frederick E. Westbrook. EXCEPTING AND RESERVING a portion thereof called the "Croquet Lot" heretofore conveyed to Caroline Voorhees, this description being taken from a deed made by Caroline Voorhees and Jennie R. Ager to Anna G. Merritt, now deceased, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office in Liber 216 of deeds at page 41, etc.

(1-b) Also all that certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate in the Village of Kingston, County of Ulster and State of New York, bounded as follows, viz: BEGINNING on East Front Street at the corner of the lot belonging to the said party of the second part (Frances C. Voorhees, meaning,) formerly to the estate of Abraham A. Masten, deceased; then north-eastwardly along said lot, down the hill and across the ditch to land also belonging to the said party of the second part; thence along the same southeaster-wardly seventy-five feet; thence southwest-wardly on a course parallel with the first line to East Front Street; and thence along said street seventy-five feet to the place of beginning, being the same premises described and conveyed in a deed from Thomas L. Van Gaasbeck to Francis C. Voorhees, dated June 11, 1838 and recorded in Ulster County Clerk's Office on that day in Liber 51 of deeds at page 12.

(1-c) Also, all that lot of land in said City of Kingston, BEGINNING at the northwesterly corner of the lot intended hereby to be conveyed on the bounds of said Voorhees near the westerly corner of his barn; thence along the bounds of said Voorhees 20 degrees 30 minutes east 26 feet; thence south 39 degrees east 93 feet to a post in the corner of the fence; thence south 61 degrees 15 minutes west along the bounds of said Voorhees 89 feet 01 inches to a stone wall on the easterly side of the road leading from East Front Street to said Voorhees' low land; thence along said stone wall on the easterly side of said road north 24 degrees 45 minutes west 91 feet; then north five degrees west 35 feet 08 inches; then north 15 degrees 45 minutes east 93 feet 07 inches; then north 66 degrees 30 minutes east one foot six inches to the place of beginning, being the same premises conveyed by Charles W. Schaffer and wife to said Francis C Voorhees by deed dated June 7, 1853 and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office in Liber 80 of deeds at page 379

(1-d) Also, all that tract or parcel of land situate in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster and State of New York, bounded and described as follows: BEGINNING at a stone set in the ground in the bounds of lands of Samuel D. Coykendall and runs thence along the same north 77 degrees east 270 feet to a stone set in the ground; thence along the lands of Reynolds and Ten Broeck north 29 degrees and 30 minutes east 462 feet to the corner of the fence in bounds of the said Ten Broeck; thence along the same south 60 degrees west 877 feet; thence south five degrees 20 minutes west 185 feet; thence south 45 degrees 05 minutes west two hundred feet to the line of the Clinton Avenue lots, as owned and possessed by divers persons; thence along the same south 44 degrees 15 minutes east 402 feet and six inches to line of the lot of N. Smith; then along the same north 19 degrees 15 minutes east 406 feet six inches to the corner of the fence; thence south 73 degrees 45 minutes east 120 feet; thence south 83 degrees 30 minutes east ninety feet; thence south 59 degrees 45 minutes east 71 feet; then north 83 degrees 10 minutes east 62 feet to the lands of the said Coykendall; thence along the same north 28 degrees 15 minutes west 297 feet to the place of beginning Containing 12.7 acres of land, be the same more or less, together with the right of way over and through what is known as Westbrook's Lane or Westbrook's hill, leading from Clinton Avenue to the lands heretofore set forth and described, for the free ingress and egress from the lands heretofore set forth and described. The courses above mentioned being in reference to the true meridian.

EXCEPTING AND RESERVING from the lands first above described the land included within the right of way of the Ulster and Delaware Railroad through the same, containing 1.38 of an acre, be the same more or less

The foregoing being the same premises conveyed by Cornelius Burhans to Francis C. Merritt, Grace V. Merritt and Charles H. Merritt, by deed dated December 8, 1909, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office on December 10, 1909, in Liber 421 of deeds at page 510.

(1-e) Also the "Croquet Lot" BEGINNING at said easterly side of said avenue (meaning Clinton Avenue, in the City of Kingston, N. Y.) at the southwest corner of the lot formerly of Fred Peters, now of Howard Hendricks; thence along said avenue northwesterly 75 feet 11 inches to a point six inches from the southeast side of the barn now on the lot adjoining north to herein described lot; thence parallel with and six inches from said side of such barn north 57 degrees 30 minutes east 120 feet eight inches to the center of the brook or ditch running through the lowlands; thence southeasterly through the center of said ditch 69 feet six inches to the division line with said Hendricks; thence along said Hendricks southwesterly 137 feet 11 inches to the place of beginning on said Clinton Avenue, being a lot bounded southwesterly by the barn lot; northeasterly by the ditch or brook; and southeasterly by Hendricks, being the same premises conveyed by Anna G. Merritt to Caroline Voorhees by deed dated March 12, 1870, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office in Book of Deeds No. 216 at page 39.

(1-f) Also, all that certain lot of low land in Kingston, Ulster County, New York, and which is known and distinguished in a division of the real estate of Cornelius Burhans, deceased, as lot number two bounded and described as follows, Viz:

BEGINNING at the southwest corner of lot No. one, formerly of Elizabeth Van Steenburgh, at a stake on the south side of the ditch and runs from thence along said lot south 57 degrees east ten chains 15 links to a stake in the division line with lot No. 3; thence along said line south 74 degrees 45 minutes west nine chains 90 links to the division fence with the heirs of Abraham Masten, deceased; thence along said fence north 71 degrees west one chain 87 links; north 49 degrees 30 minutes west 61 links; north 40 degrees west 84 links; north 29 degrees west 95 links; north 23 degrees west 95 links; north 26 degrees 30 minutes west one chain seven links and north 57 degrees west 39 links to the ditch aforesaid; thence along the same north 17 degrees east one chain; north 28 degrees east 32 links north 53 degrees 30 minutes east 41 links; north 37 degrees east 41 links; north 58 degrees 30 minutes east 54 links; north 76 degrees east 64 links; north 72 degrees 30 minutes east two chains 65 links; and north 56 degrees east one chain 27 links to the place of beginning, containing six acres, more or less.

(1-g) Also, all that certain triangular piece of land situated in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster, on the northerly side of the Ulster and Delaware Railroad, bounded as follows:

COMMENCING at the easterly point of said triangular lot on the line of the Ulster and Delaware Railroad at the point where lands late of Thomas H. Van Steenburgh, deceased, intersect said Railroad line; thence westerly along the line of railroad 218 feet to the fence on the easterly side of a lane leading to the lands of said Thomas H. Van Steenburgh; thence northerly along said lane fence 130 feet to the land late of said Thomas H. Van Steenburgh, deceased, thence easterly along the lands late of said Thomas H. Van Steenburgh 181 feet to the place of beginning.

EXCEPTING AND RESERVING from the premises first described, all the right and interest of the Ulster and Delaware Railroad Company in and to said premises by virtue of a deed dated April 14, 1869, made by John T. Burhans and wife, to the Rondout and Oswego Railroad Company.

Also, EXCEPTING a lot of land containing about .16 of an acre conveyed to Wessell Ten Broeck by Lewis N. Hermance and wife, by deed dated July 14, 1869, adjoining said railroad.

Also EXCEPTING AND RESERVING a right of way fifteen feet wide conveyed by Lewis N. Hermance, now deceased, to Jacob Burhans by deed dated May 5, 1860, running to the Voorhees lane and the use of which right of way was reserved to Wessel Ten Broeck by the aforesaid deed to him from Lewis N. Hermance.

The foregoing being the same premises conveyed by Henry L. Hermance and others to Anna G. Merritt, by deed dated February 4, 1881, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office in Liber 227 of deeds at page 368.

EXCEPTING AND RESERVING out of the foregoing described lot of land, so much thereof as has been heretofore conveyed by Grace V. Merritt and Charles H. Merritt, to Fred W. Phillips and another by deed recorded in said Clerk's Office in Liber 460 of deeds at page 36, on March 19, 1917, and said above described parcels of land being subject to the restrictions in said last above mentioned deed contained on the part of the grantors therein, to which deed or the record thereof, reference is hereby made for a full and particular description of the lands so excepted and the said restrictions.

Also, EXCEPTING AND RESERVING out of the foregoing described lots so much thereof as was heretofore conveyed by said Grace V. Merritt and Charles H. Merritt to Walter H. Van Gaasbeck, by deed dated January 19, 1915, and recorded in said Clerk's Office on January 22, 1915, in Liber 451 of Deeds at page 71 to which deed or the record thereof reference is hereby made for a full and complete description of the said parcel so excepted.

Also, EXCEPTING AND RESERVING out of the above described parcels of land all rights reserved by and granted to the Ulster and Delaware Railroad Company, or its predecessors in title.

Second Parcel.

All that certain lot, piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being in the City of Kingston, Ulster County, New York, bounded and described as follows

BEGINNING on the westerly side of Clinton Avenue, formerly East Front Street, at a point 32 feet three inches northerly from the northeasterly corner of the main building of the homestead house of F. C. Voorhees, deceased; thence with a direct line which shall be tangent to the northeast corner of the brick smoke house, south 40 degrees and 08 minutes west 152 feet to a point in line with the rear line of Dr. R. Loughran's lot prolonged; thence along said prolongation North 29 degrees 52 minutes West 20 feet 1½ inches (about) to the south line of Caleb Merritt; thence along Merritt northeasterly 56 feet six inches to the southeasterly corner of Merritt; thence still along Merritt northwesterly 20 feet to a lot of formerly Frederick E. Westbrook, now the People of the State of New York, thence northeasterly along said lot of the People of the State of New York 115 feet 08 inches to Clinton Avenue; thence along said Avenue southeasterly 59 feet 9⅜ inches to the place of beginning. Also all that narrow piece or strip of land adjoining the above described parcel on the south, bounded and described as follows.

BEGINNING at a point on the westerly side of Clinton Avenue, at an iron pipe set in the ground, said point being 32 feet 3 inches measured northerly along said westerly side of Clinton Avenue from the northwesterly corner of the main building of the homestead house of F. C. Voorhees, deceased and running thence along the southerly bounds of the main homestead property, or Parcel III described in the complaint to the northwesterly corner of the Voorhees Homestead an iron pipe set in the ground; thence running South 28° 27' East 9.05 feet to a point, an iron pipe set in the ground; thence north 59° 39' east 152 feet to a point on the westerly side of Clinton Avenue at an iron pipe set in the ground, thence north 29° 20' west along the westerly side of Clinton Avenue 1.67 feet to the point or place of beginning.

Third Parcel.

All that tract or parcel of land, situate in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster and State of New York, bounded and described as follows:

BEGINNING AT A POINT ON THE WESTERLY SIDE OF CLINTON AVENUE, formerly East Front Street, being a point 32 feet 3 inches northerly from the northeast corner of the main building of the Homestead of F. C. Voorhees, deceased; thence with a direct line which shall be tangent to the northeast corner of the old brick smoke house 40° 08' West 152 feet to a point 45 feet 07 inches from said corner of smoke house; thence on a line with the rear of Dr. Robert Loughran's lot south 29° 52' East 72 feet 10 inches to said Loughran's northeast corner; and thence same course along the rear line of said Loughran 57 feet 11 inches to the lot of E. DuBois; thence along said DuBois north easterly 151 feet six inches to Clinton Avenue; thence along the westerly side of Clinton Avenue northwesterly 134 feet and 08 inches to the place of beginning.

EXCEPTING from the above all that narrow piece or strip of land adjoining the above described lands on the north, bounded and described as follows.

BEGINNING AT A POINT ON THE WESTERLY SIDE OF Clinton Avenue at an iron pipe set in the ground, said point being 32 feet 3 inches measured northerly along said westerly side of Clinton Avenue from the northwesterly corner of the main homestead house of F. C. Voorhees, deceased, and running thence along the southerly bounds of the main homestead property, or Parcel III of the complaint to the northwesterly corner of the Voorhees homestead an iron pipe set in the ground; thence running South 28° 27' East 9.05 feet to a point, an iron pipe set in the ground, thence north 59° 39' east 152 feet to a point on the westerly side of Clinton Avenue at an iron pipe set in the ground, thence north 29° 20' west, along the westerly side of Clinton Avenue 1.67 feet to the point or place of beginning.

BISHOP BROWN ON TRIAL FOR HERESY.

Bishop William Montgomery Brown, of Galion, O., retired Bishop of Arkansas, is shown here in Cleveland, O., pointing to a passage in the Bible he declares cannot be translated literally. This passage reads: "And the rib which the Lord God had taken from man, made He a woman and brought her unto man." Bishop Brown is on trial before nine Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church on the charge of heresy.

BEADS AND CALICO NO LURE FOR POLYNESIANS

Islands Have 5 and 10-Cent Stores and Enjoy Radio, Says Old Skipper.

Seattle, Wash.—"No more beads and bright calico for the wild and fuzzy Polynesian," declares Capt. Francis Drake, South Seas trader. "Why, bless your heart, they've got 5 and 10-cent stores all over the islands and the natives listen to Calvin Coolidge on the radio every time he speaks into it. Instead of taking out a boat load of trinkets to trade for curios, the modern trader in the coconut isles takes only silver and gold to buy the things for stay-at-homes."

Drake, who is sixty years old and has been a mariner for more than forty-five years, will soon set sail from here in the Pilgrim, a thirty-five-foot schooner-rigged boat, for another world trip.

"Loafing around the world in your own boat is the only life," says the wanderer. "You young fellows in the cities work and sweat—and what do you get. I go out on the sea and I don't need money. No bills coming in. No traffic to dodge. Throw away the clock and look at the calendar once a month. And once outside the regular steamer lanes I never see a thing. You could stay out here twenty years and never meet a ship. Safest place in the world.

"At night the flying fish flop aboard and fall on deck. In the morning you pick them up, clip off their wings and toss 'em into the pan. They even make their own oil to fry themselves in."

And the cheerful face of the trouble beater sank down the hatchway like the sun setting over the horizon.

X-Ray Drunk Meter to Reveal Intoxication

San Francisco.—Up to this time it has been virtually impossible to prove intoxication before a jury.

Alibis, in expert testimony of the arresting officers and the haphazard examinations of emergency hospital attendants, will now be supplanted in the very near future by black and white figures showing the exact degree of intoxication.

Dr. O. W. Ginsburg, an X-ray expert, says the "metabular" will do the work correctly and furthermore it will not be guesswork, but the finding of modern science will be recorded on paper.

Doctor Ginsburg's explanation of his discovery follows:

It is known to medical men that a person under the influence of intoxicating liquors consumes far greater quantities of oxygen than he does normally.

This condition is natural, because alcohol is a greater heat producer and calls for larger quantities of oxygen to offset the consumption of heat.

All that is necessary to determine the degree of intoxication is to find out the heat production going on in the body by the intake of oxygen.

The "metabular" does this positively. The suspect is fed pure oxygen through a nozzle. The "metabular" registers how much was taken into the system.

Chemists Bare Secrets of Corn Rain Prophets

Washington.—Reforms in college and high school chemistry courses, heat transfer and problems of dye, rubber, leather and gelatin production occupied the delegates attending sessions of the American Chemical society.

The diversity of length and content of high school courses and differing entrance requirements with respect to chemistry on the part of colleges were listed as the major faults discovered in a survey.

Foot discomforts which come with changing weather were attributed by John Arthur Wilson and Albert F. Gallum, Jr., of Milwaukee to shrinking of leather in shoes.

"The greatest difference in this respect," they said, "is found between chrome-tanned and vegetable-tanned leathers."

A study made by R. F. Kohr and L. Butler for the United States army air service, occasioned largely by the proposed use of helium in lighter-than-air craft, was considered at a heat-transfer symposium.

Norway Continues Hunt for Great Cod Shoals

Christiania.—The investigation commenced last year by the Norwegian fishery department to discover the whereabouts of the great cod shoals are to be continued this summer.

Further areas about Spitzbergen will be subjected to examination, and, in addition to the official expedition, it is probable that more than one expedition will be undertaken as a result of municipal or private initiative. In the province of Sondmore plans are being prepared for the dispatch of an expedition to western Greenland to search for cod. Sealers who have returned from that region report the presence of large quantities about the banks.

Music Aids in Writing

Lindsborg, Kan.—Phonograph music is being used at Bethany college to make better penmen. In order that the students of the commercial department enrolled in writing courses may secure rhythm and more uniform motion in their work, Miss Hazel Mathis, instructor, plays phonograph records during each lesson. Satisfactory results have been obtained by the use of the phonograph in the classroom in this manner.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Smart Frock For the Growing Girl.

4754.—To the girl who likes something different, this style will appeal. It has the hip band extensions on the waist, and the popular side closing. The sleeve is very attractive in wrist length and equally pleasing in its brevity. This model is nice for the new prints and crepe weaves. It is also attractive in gingham and linen.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes. 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 10 year size requires 3½ yards of 32 inch material if made with long sleeves. If made with short sleeves 3¼ yards is required.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps for our up-to-date spring and summer catalogue, containing 550 designs signs of ladies, and misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various, simple stitches,) all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Catches Faint Sounds

Sounds made by small insects generally believed to be absolutely mute may be heard by a microphone reported to have been completed recently by scientists of an eastern electrical concern, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. Sounds heretofore too faint to be caught by the human ear are said to be recorded by the device, which registers the waves as they disturb a delicate current passing between contacts in an insulated ring. Experts claim that the apparatus may be of great advantage in the study of insect life.

NEW STAMP ISSUE EXCITES INTEREST

Commemorates Coming of Huguenots and Walloons.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY

Washington.—Great interest is being taken in the three new postage stamps just issued by the government. They are in denominations of one, two and five cents and will commemorate the coming to America of the Huguenots and the Walloons and the three-hundredth anniversary of the settlement of New York and the Middle Atlantic states. Government officials declare that they are the most beautiful stamps ever issued by the department. In order that the historic scenes which they will bear may be shown more effectively they will be larger than usual and oblong in shape.

On the one-cent stamp is the picture of the "Nieu Nederlandt," the ship which brought to America in 1624 the first 32 families under the auspices of the Dutch West India company. Some of these families settled on Manhattan Island, others at Fort Orange, now Albany, and still others in different Atlantic states. The two-cent stump is a reproduction of a monument set up at Mayport, on the St. John's river, Florida, by the Huguenots, who made in 1562 the first attempt at a permanent settlement in what is now the United States. They were massacred by the Spaniards in 1565.

Issued Progressively.

Following the usual custom to meet the desires of collectors the commemorative stamps will be issued progressively. The celebration began with the dedication of a monument erected by the Daughters of the American Revolution at Jacksonville and Mayport, Florida, on May 1. The first stamps were released there on that date. As the celebration progressed northward, stamps were issued at each point of the celebration which will last six weeks. Afterwards they will be put on sale throughout the country.

In addition to the stamps the government has struck a commemorative fifty-cent piece, known as the Huguenot coin, bearing on one side the ship "Nieu Nederlandt" and on the other the profiles of William the Silent and Admiral Coligny of France. "It was William the Silent, the George Washington of Holland, who first sheltered the Huguenots and Walloons when they were driven from France and Belgium by religious persecution," explains Dr. John Baer Stoudt, the noted historian, who is director of the Huguenot-Walloon-New Netherland tercentenary commission. Coligny was the first of the great leaders of Europe to suggest America as a place of refuge for those seeking religious freedom.

"The Dutch West India company granted them the privilege of settling in the region then known as New Netherland. The group that came over in 1624 founded what proved to be the first permanent Huguenot and Walloon colony in America. Two earlier attempts made by Jean Ribaut under Admiral Coligny, at Mayport, Florida, and Charleston, South Carolina, were unsuccessful because of Spanish massacres."

Starting in Mayport, Florida, the first week in May, the celebrations worked northward through the southern states, with special exercises in South Carolina, and through Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, all of which boast early Huguenot colonies. The most elaborate part of the ceremonies took place in New York, where hundreds of Huguenot and Walloon descendants met to form a permanent national organization. The ceremonies included the dedication of a Belgian gift monument and a national memorial Huguenot church on Staten Island and exercises at Albany and New Paltz.

Meets Ready Sale.

The general public never seems to lose interest in the stamp issues put out by the Post Office department. Every new issue, no matter what the purpose of it, meets with a ready sale. Perhaps, in the history of the government there has been no special issue that has been in greater demand than the Harding memorial issue. The old red two-cent stamp has practically disappeared since the dark-colored Harding stamp made its appearance. Of course there is much sentiment behind the enormous demand for the memorial stamp. It is reasonable to assume that within a year or two the demand for this particular stamp will slow down and the department will once more be putting out what some folks call the commonplace red two-cent stamp.

Another interesting thing about this stamp business is the activity of the collectors. Generation after generation continues to furnish men and women who find recreation in the collection of stamps from all sections of the world. This fad, if it may be called a fad, centers here because stamps from every member of the international postal union find their way to this capital. The Post Office department has always endeavored to be helpful in every way possible to the collectors.

THE VERY UGLY DUCKLING

By EVELYN S. WHITMORE

(©, 1924, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Lotta, what do you think has happened now, or rather, is going to happen? The night of my party, too," Berenice began dolefully, giving the pillow behind her back a vicious punch.

"Oh, there's a reason for these doldrums, then," grinned Lotta unsympathetically. She was used to her chum's vagaries. "Cheer up, lady, anticipation is worse than realization sometimes."

"Worse! Nothing could be worse!" Berenice wailed.

"Unburden yourself and let's see what the cruel fates have handed out." Lotta's voice was flippant. To see the spoiled and petted child, as she called Berenice, in a blue funk was an amusing spectacle, and she meant to enjoy it. "Tell me, what did you get for a present?" she insisted.

"Lotta, you are a heartless wretch. This isn't any 'oh, be joyful' occasion. I don't think you care a bit," reproachfully.

"Of course I don't. How can you expect me to feel wretched over a catastrophe I don't know a thing about? And you're such a picture of woe; you look too comical for words," chuckling. "Have you been crying for a white elephant? And did you get mad when one dropped in your lap? Tell me, can't you?"

"I suppose I'll have to," Berenice agreed, reluctantly. "But you might at least show a little sympathy. That everlasting grin is enough to upset anyone's nerves. There's nothing funny about it."

The grin became more pronounced, and, fearing an explosion of laughter, Berenice hurried on.

"You know I have a cousin, Ellen Brainard, who lives down near Westbrook, in the country. She intends to pass through town on her way to New York to study art. Art!" Berenice shrilled derisively. "Ellen studying art! It's the biggest joke I ever heard. But," sobering instantly, "she's coming here to stay one night, and it's the night of my party. Of all the luck!"

"It's just like a story!" Lotta's eyes were sparkling. "The awkward country cousin is always popping in at a critical time and appealing to the hero's romantic instincts. How old is she? What does she look like?"

"She is three years younger than I am (Berenice's tone lacked enthusiasm) and I don't know what she looks like. I don't care, either. I haven't seen her for five years. You remember we were down there that summer I was sick. It was a few months before I went abroad, and I haven't seen her since." She glanced at Lotta, but no comment was forthcoming, so she continued:

"Ellen was fifteen then, and like any gawky kid of that age, all arms and legs and big black eyes. No, they were brown," she amended.

"You were only three years older yourself," Lotta interposed. "Oh, never mind," repressing a smile at Berenice's pained expression. "Go on!"

"Well, she had yellow pigtails and plenty of freckles, and that's all. There, I hope you're satisfied!"

"No, I'm more curious than before. I want to see her. Evidently, from your description, she's the original ugly duckling."

"All I can say is, they must be crazy to think of sending her to New York. Who is to look after her, and where she will get the money I don't see."

"You don't see very much of your relatives, anyway, seems to me," Lotta said dryly.

Berenice's eyes flashed indignant protest. "When I'm occupied the whole time with social duties, how do you suppose I can keep track of the entire Brainard family unto the third and fourth generations? What I'd like to know is, what am I to do with Ellen when he comes? She won't get here until the last minute."

"Lend her some of your things and put her in Annette's care. That maid can accomplish wonders. She will make the girl presentable. Then leave the rest to the handsome hero," Lotta laughed aloud. "By the way, Berenice, have you heard that Alan Traynor has finished his studies abroad and is expected home any day? He is a top notch artist, I understand."

"Oh, yes," with an elaborate carelessness that did not deceive her friend, "I've invited him to my party."

"Oh, ho! that's who the party's for! Alan's to be reigning lion! Queer I never heard any hints floating around. Are you planning to lay siege to his heart the moment he arrives?"

"You forget that Alan and I were pretty good friends before he ever went away. He has been gone only three years."

"Maybe. But the male of the species is a fickle creature and much can happen in three years."

Berenice sniffed. "Just wait until you see the orange frock I'm going to wear. If that doesn't attract his artistic eye, nothing will."

"I hope it won't put his eye out. Do you think he will like being lionized? He may be a modest man." Lotta's shy glance was provocative. "The lion and the duckling." She chuckled. "How do you suppose they will get on together?"

"Don't, Lotta; you sound like a menagerie," Berenice shuddered. "I'm ready to have nervous prostration this minute. It's awful!"

"Anticipation—oh, all right," Lotta finished, laughing. "I'll come early. I'm anxious to see Cousin Ellen."

* * * * * * *

The night of her social affair Berenice sent her father to the train to meet Ellen, then straightway forgot about her. It was some time later, as she stood talking to Lotta, watching covertly for Alan to appear, that her chum nudged her excitedly. "Look, look!" she whispered. Berenice looked and imagined she saw a vision crossing the room on her father's arm. Her confused senses in a whirl of utter astonishment, registered a complete picture of expressive brown eyes, creamy skin and a cream white gown with touches of gold that matched shining gold hair. She gasped audibly. Was this exquisite creature Ellen? She could not believe the evidence of her own eyes. The simple perfection of the white and gold frock, and the graceful poise of its wearer, made Berenice in her brilliant raiment feel like a gaudy bumpkin who had strayed from his natural element. Close to her ear came Lotta's sibilant whisper, "Ah, the ugly duckling has become a beautiful swan!"

Berenice shrugged impatiently and did not answer. She was still bewildered. But her cousin's friendly manner helped Berenice to regain her composure and she exerted herself to give Ellen a cordial welcome.

They had barely uttered a dozen words when Alan's voice at her elbow caused Berenice to flush uncomfortably.

"Hello, Berenice, glad to see you again!" His hand-clasp was hearty and his tone sincere, but his eager gaze traveled beyond her and rested on Ellen. Berenice was obliged to present him and saw her dream of a speedy conquest of his affections vanish into thin air.

In Alan's voice was delight unfeigned as he turned to Ellen. "Miss Brainard," he smiled, holding her hand as if he meant to keep it forever, "I have been desperate to meet you ever since I examined the sketches you submitted to the Academy. They were perfect. How did you acquire such a delicate touch?"

Lotta thrust her arm through Berenice's and drew her away. She was shaking with amusement. "So the little country cousin has captured the lion of the evening without firing a single shot," she grinned. "I never saw a more complete surrender."

Berenice began a sharp retort, then shrugged her shoulders and laughed instead.

"Well, one thing is certain," she averred. "Many changes can take place in five years. And there's something about fine feathers—" ruefully.

First Locomotive Was Constructed in England

The story of the first locomotive to turn a wheel on a railway track in the Western hemisphere has often been told, but it will be new to many readers. That locomotive was built in England and was imported in 1829; it made its first trip from Carbondale to Honesdale, Pa., in 1829 and was driven by Horatio Allen.

Mr. Allen was born in Schenectady, N. Y., in 1802. He was educated at Columbia college, became a civil and mechanical engineer and was employed as resident engineer of the Delaware & Hudson Canal company. In 1827 he visited England to buy rails and locomotives for the railway that the canal company proposed to build between Carbondale and Honesdale. He returned the next year, and the first locomotive soon followed him. It was named the Stourbridge Lion—"Stourbridge" from the English town in which it was built, and "Lion" from the head of a lion painted on the round face of the boiler.

For more than twenty years the engine remained under a shed near where its trial was made and was then removed to the Honesdale foundry, on Ladywood lane, where it was partly dismantled and broken up. One of the cylinders and the connecting rods of both cylinders and pumps fell into the hands of George B. Smith of Dunmore, near Scranton, Pa. The other cylinder is in the possession of the heirs of Steuben Jenkins of Wyoming, Pa. Some years ago such parts as the government was able to gather up were taken to Washington, where the missing pieces were supplied. The locomotive, reconstructed, is now on exhibition at the Smithsonian Institution.—Youth's Companion.

Truthful

In Banff sheriff court the fiscal (the official prosecutor) was making inquiries about some slight manifestations of exuberance in a rural village.

Said He—Would you consider that what was going on was merely fun?

Witness—I couldna say.

"Would you go so far as to say it was horse play?"

"I dinna ken."

"You don't know. But you were there, weren't you?"

"Aye, I was there, but I've never seen horses play."

Nothing to Bet On

Two colored men were digging in a trench when one remarked, "Say, if I won dat Bok prize I'd t'row dis old shovel 'bout seben miles."

"Yeah!" sneered his companion, "and if a bullfrog had wings he'd fly."

"I dunno. Maybe he wouldn't," said the first man. "He done got fo' laigs an' he won't walk."—Boston Transcript.

SERVICE FOR TAXES

By JOHN T. ADAMS,
Chairman of the Republican National Committee

June 30 will mark the end of the third complete fiscal year of the federal government since the Republican party came into power March 4, 1921. The administration which that party has given the United States during these three years is the best business administration the United States has experienced since the establishment of the government.

Under Republican control, the executive and legislative branches have cooperated to reduce public expenditures, establish business methods, and otherwise to put in full force and effect a program of rigid public economy. This was made easier by the budget system, which was created by one of the first acts of the special session of the Republican Congress called by President Harding.

The story of the decrease of routine public expenditures under Republican administration is told in the following figures:

Fiscal year ending
*June 30, 1921	$5,115,927,689
June 30, 1922	3,372,607,899
June 30, 1923	3,129,418,776
†June 30, 1924	3,053,000,000

*Only three months of this year were under Republican administration.
†Estimated.

In other words, the cost of doing the routine business of the government (exclusive of interest on the public debt and the sinking fund) has been reduced over $2,000,000,000 a year since the Republican party came into power.

It should be kept in mind when comparing expenditures today with those of pre-war periods that there are many items of fixed charges of tremendous amounts which did not exist prior to the war. Among them is the item of a billion dollars a year interest on the public debt, and $400,000,000 a year for the maintenance of the Veterans' bureau. In view of these fixed charges of such proportions, the reduction in public expenses that has been accomplished is all the more remarkable.

Since March, 1921, practically every department has been reorganized along lines that make for economy and promote efficiency. This was the biggest economic task ever undertaken by a public administration. But it has been accomplished. As a result, the United States has been more nearly restored to normal conditions than any other nation which participated in the World war.

Today the United States, as a result of three years of Republican rule, is giving to the taxpayers more public service and better public service than ever before in the history of the country.

Many Dialects Found in "English" Language

The English language, observes the Kansas City Times, belongs to the Teutonic branch of the Indo-European family. It is a subdivision of the low German, which in turn is a division of the west Germanic branch of the Teutonic group. It is customary to divide the language into three periods, Anglo-Saxon or old English (449-1066), middle English (1066-1560) and modern English, from 1700 to the present. The year 449 marked the invasion of Britain by the first of the Teutonic, or low German, tribes who overran the island in the Fifth and Sixth centuries. The invaders found in Britain a race of people who spoke a Celtic dialect and these, after 150 years of incessant fighting, were driven into Wales and Cornwall. The conqueror's speech, to which the name of Anglo-Saxon is given, became the language of the country and the foundation upon which modern English is built.

During the centuries before 1066 many words were taken from the Celtic tribes. In the Sixth century came Roman Christianity and the addition of many Latin terms and grammatical forms. The Danish conquest of the island added considerable of the Scandinavian element.

The middle English period began with the conquest of England by William, duke of Normandy, who broke the power in Harold at the battle of Hastings in 1066. The French language was spoken for the next two centuries by the upper classes, law courts and schools. The conquered people held on its lips the English language and finally it became dominant. About 1259 the two languages began to merge, English absorbing almost the entire body of French.

In the Sixteenth century the development of modern English began. Since that time borrowing and assimilation have gone on continually through literary, commercial and political relations with other nations.

Lava Bear No Myth

Lava bears are no myth, declares the Portland Oregonian. A couple of years ago Irvin Cobb came to Oregon to hunt the lava bear. He didn't see one, and he was advised by many Oregonians who have spent outdoors many years of their lives that there was no such animal. However, Cobb met one chap at Fort Rock who informed Cobb that if he met a lava bear he needn't shoot the creature. "Just kick 'em to death," was the advice.

Well, there are lava bears in Oregon. They're not very numerous, but they do exist. One reason why few have been seen is that they live in the lava beds where a man dare not penetrate more than a couple of hundred feet for fear of being lost and perishing.

Dan Godsil, game warden for Lake county, who is in Portland, says that he has seen two lava bears. One was trapped a year ago by an agent of the government biological survey. The lava bear is about the size of a house cat and is mostly head. It looks exactly like the regulation bear, except for its small size, and as the old-timer Cobb, the lava bear doesn't have to be shot, for if the hunter can get near enough he can boot the bear to death. The bear caught last year was in the lava field northeast of Fort Rock.

Royal Sufferings

I'd rather have a good digestion than a throne; and so, I imagine, would the king and his eldest son, a writer in the London Daily Mail remarks. Few people realize that his majesty suffers from chronic indigestion and how on earth he manages to smile as much as he does passes my comprehension. The prince of Wales inherits his father's complaint and is the despair of his hosts and hostesses because he practically lives on eggs and farinaceous fodder. His most solid dish is chicken—and even that has to be chopped up very fine for him. Yet he manages as a rule to appear in the pink of condition, and his natural nervousness and fidgetiness (he can hardly keep still for five minutes together) are admirably camouflaged in public.

Far Sighted

Customer—But surely you don't really sell these watches at a dollar each?

Shopman—Oh, yes, madam.

"But they must cost that to make."

"They do, madam."

"Then how do you make your profit?"

"Repairing them, madam."—London Answers.

Colored Stars Here Sunday

Manager Lou Brown has the Chappie Johnson Colored Stars booked for the Colonials Sunday afternoon at the Fair Grounds. This team is one of the cleverest and fastest colored aggregations in this state and they are very popular with the fans, always putting up a good brand of ball and fighting until the last man is down in the ninth. Chapple says he is bringing the strongest team he ever put on the diamond to face the Schirick men tomorrow.

Judge Schirick will have the same combination on hand that gave the Silk Sox a double trimming. As both Culloton and Morgan worked a full game against the Sox, it is likely that the judge will start with Coutant or Perry. Corregan will also be ready. From these three the Colonials should be able to pick a winner to make their winning streak seven.

K. H. S. Blanked Port Jervis, 12-0

Thursday afternoon, Kingston High School easily defeated the Port Jervis nine by a 12 to 0 score. Coach Perry's charges ran away with the visitors making eleven runs in one inning. This win raises the standing of the locals in the DUSO League.

In the first inning the locals had no trouble in retiring the Port Jervis men. In their half the locals made two hits but were unable to put a run across.

In the second inning the visitors were again unsuccessful in their attempts to hit Lawrence. It was in this inning that the locals found their batting eye and knocked the ball all over the lot. The locals made a total of seven hits, which, combined with three bases on balls and an error, brought in eleven runs. It seemed as if the Port Jervis men would never succeed in getting three of the locals out, but they finally did.

The visitors were unable to do anything with Knight's delivery, who replaced Lawrence, who is being saved for today's game.

In the sixth inning the locals put another run across, raising their total to twelve.

In the fifth, the visitors had some hopes of doing something but those hopes were sadly shattered by a pretty double play, Hoffman to Hauser to McLane. The locals stopped trying after the fifth inning.

Every one of the locals played good ball, but did not have many chances. Coach Perry has got every man into good condition for today's game.

The score:

John Alexander and family of Cold Brook called at Elijah Shurter's on Sunday last.

Claude Christiana of Kerhonkson called on his aunt, Mrs. Bevier, on Monday evening.

Mrs. Myers made a business trip to the Larkin store in the village on Wednesday.

The traveling grocery store from Kerhonkson is making trips twice a week, which is a great convenience for people living so far from the store.

No gardens are made here yet on account of the wet weather. Farmers are trying every fair day to get corn planted.

"Catsup" From the East

Catsup is a word derived from the name of an East Indian pickle. The term was first applied to the boiled spiced juice from salted mushrooms, but is now freely used for various sauces which consist of the pulp—boiled, strained and seasoned—of tomatoes, green walnuts, etc.

Decision in Miller-Coletti Bout Very Poor

Flyweight Contenders Stage Slashing 10 Round Bout—Judge's Decision Deservedly Unpopular—Werner Puts Across K. O. Blows—Hyatt Picked Off Guard and Hits Canvas in Opening Seconds.

The bouts at the Fair Grounds Decoration Day evening proved to be the best exhibition of the manly art that fight fans have enjoyed this year. The final go between Joe Coletti of Poughkeepsie and Terry Miller was exceedingly fast and both boys proved to be clever, game and willing. The judge's decision was a draw but the fans did not take at all well to this ruling as Miller seemed to have all the better of the going in the last two or three rounds.

Don Hyatt, local boy, went down before Joe Romanelli of Poughkeepsie before he had his hands raised. The other bouts went the limit, showing that the matchmaker knew his business and had boys pretty evenly matched.

Davie Abad and Sammy Shack, flyweights, fought the opening four-round bout. Abad was the more rugged of the two and forced the fighting. Both boys were arm weary after the first two rounds and unable to get enough staem behind their punches to put across a K. O. blow that they tried so hard for. Abad landed more often and had Shack in distress once or twice in the third round. The judges rendered a decision for Abad.

Dominick Petrone and Mickey Sapnick, both of New York, put up a good exhibition in the next preliminary bout. They were both fast, Sapnick being a bit the heavier of the two. The weight were Petrone, 114¾; Sapnick, 117. The crowd had a good laugh when the curfew rang in the middle of the first round and both scrappers took it for the bell ending the session and started for their corners.

Petronne had Mickey in a bad way in the second rounud but Sapnick weathered the storm and rallied nicely at the bell. The next round was about even. Neither had a sleep-producing punch. In the fifth round, Petronne was groggy and reeling in a neutral corner and Sapnick tried hard to finish the fight. Petronne was able to take it and both were mixing willingly at the bell. Sapnick had Petrone reeling in the closing session. Petrone handled himself well when hurt and kept away from Mickey's wide-swinging right. The decision was earned by Sapnick and the judges' decision giving him the verdict was popular.

The next fight was one that many of the fans were looking forward to. Don Hyatt, Kingston boy, weighed in at 144 and Joe Romanelli, rugged slugger from the Bridge City, at 143. At the bell for the first round, Hyatt advanced to the center of the ring with hands outstretched, offering to tip gloves. Romanelli ignored Don's offer to touch mitts and whipped over a horrid left to the local boy's unguarded jaw. The crowd didn't like Romanelli's action but the referee disregarded their howls. Hyatt went reeling to his knees in a neutral corner. He was up too quick, not taking advantage of a long count. He was clearly groggy. Romanelli closed in, shot across another left and Don was down in Romanelli's corner. He was up too quickly again and seemed to be out on his feet. Another left sent him down again and at this point the referee stopped the bout.

Joe Werner and Abe Cohen, the former from Kingston and the latter from New York, were next. Werner weighed 143 and Cohen, 146. Werner forced the fighting and found a willing mixer in Cohen. Joe got the worst of a slashing mix-up in the center of the ring in the opening round. After the first round, Joe used his superior reach to good advantage and kept his left in Cohen's face a good part of the time. Cohen found it hard to get inside Joe's guard. Both missed many wild swings but in the third, Werner landed rights and lefts to Abe's jaw and had him reeling and covering. Abe got to Werner in the fourth and fifth but Werner seemed able to take a lot of punishment and was not in trouble at any time. The sixth round started with a furious slugging match in the center of the ring. Werner worked Cohen into a corner scored with a right to the heart, a left to the jaw and another right, this one to the jaw. They were all clean, hard blows and sent Cohen to the mat, face down. He was counted out andwas unable to make an attempt to gain his feet. The fight was pretty even up to the time Joe put across the K. O. punches.

The final between Coletti and Miller was a slashing bout from start to finish. The weights were Coletti, 109¾; Miller, 114¼. Coletti started from the first bell to carry the fight to Miller. Joe's bounding and bouncing tactics had Miller at sea and Joe landed often although not with telling effect. In the third round Miller began to get used to Joe's attack and the fight started to turn in Miller's favor. Miller used the ropes to good advantage several times. He rolled back on the ropes and came bounding off "a la Dundee." Miller took all Coletti had in the early rounds and Joe couldn't do a bit of damage. The fifth was full of action from gong to gong. Neither waited for the other to start the mixing but both rushed to the center and started milling. Coletti slipped to the floor during one of the mix-ups but was on his feet in an insatnt and bounding in at his taller opponent. Miller had a reach advantage of several inches over the Poughkeepsie boxer and his left in Joe's face kept the Bridge City boy at safe distance a good part of the time.

Miller came off the ropes in the sixth and landed a straight left that sent Coletti to the canvas. He was up immediately and kept boring in. He went down again in the seventh this time from a right to the head. Miller's reach stood him in good stead and he kept increasing his lead in the following rounds. Miller was not only getting in points over his smaller opponent in the closing rounds but was getting stronger and it is very doubtful whether the Poughkeepsian would weather the storm. The last round found Miller scoring almost at will and Coletti unable to get inside Terry's guard. The judges gave the Poughkeepsian much the best of it when they decided that the bout was a draw. The crowd was almost unanimously in favor of the New York boy and voiced protest at the decision.

The crowd was very small, the weather accounting for the lack of customers. Those who shivered through the evening felt that they were well rewarded by the fine card. The officials for the evening were: Dave Long, announcer; Tom Flynn and Joe Brennan, judges; Mike Hylas, referee and Lou Maxon, timer.
